Physical Description

Nullaye is an albino Vekimen that stands at 5'7" and sports an attractive, curvaceous figure that is completely covered in white scales. Even the plates that cover her sternum and run along her under-tail, are completely white, without even a speck of gray to be found. She could be considered quite attractive among many species, not just her own, with her large breasts, curvy form, shiny porcelain-like scales, and confident poise. However, like most of her species, her mouth is filled with razor sharp teeth that could appear to be infected to those unfamiliar with Vekimen physiology

Despite her attractive features, she manages to maintain an approachable air, someone that you can talk to without judgement and place your trust in. She speaks in a calm, yet flirtatious manner, and always maintains eye contact to those she is speaking to.

After all, you attract more flies with honey...

Personality

On the surface Nullaye seems like a flirtatious, caring individual who places her species above herself and believes whole-heartedly in the system.

However, in truth Nullaye is a snake, that nosey reporter that politicians dread. She'll go to huge lengths to find out what she wants to know. She's just as good at getting herself into trouble as she is worming her way out of it. Sly, and ambitious, not afraid to use people to get what she wants, especially if it will benefit other people. Not totally selfish, but she puts herself pretty high up on her priority list.

Are you Nullaye's friend?- or is she just using you to get what she wants, perhaps both? She'll make promises, but will only keep them if it suits her. Despite this, she lives to get the truth out, wherever it hides its ugly, shivering self, no matter the person that buried it.
