Personality

Nara is an INTJ<sup>2)</sup> personality type. She thinks quickly on her feet and thinks rationally in all situations. This lends to her ability to excel at her work. She can sometimes be mistaken as uncaring due to her utter distaste for those that are lazy or display self-pity. She prefers to interact with those she knows and is initially shy to strangers in social situations. If she is accompanied by someone she cares for she is more liable to be more sociable.

History

Nara Akhai Drenai was born on Telegath in 74 BYE to Kari Akhai and Talynn's father. Her birth occurred during the mid-Falcon Movement. The majority of her childhood she was spent training in the unifying philosophies and virtues of the Drenai ysi. She showed a strong adherence to two of the tenants early on which helped shape her path in life. Her talent in Martial arts and sense of Duty led her to commissioning into MERN as Security Operations officer, after the proper instruction.

Towards the end of the Falcon Movement she was given her first taste as a security officer when she was assigned to protect the weapons research that became an important part of the Dysterian War. Her efforts led to the successful use of Nuclear weapons in the destruction of the colony on Dysteria. After things wound down from that she got firsthand experience with security admin with writing policy for research protection. This policy would be used during the Space Race and the Colonization of Ayenee to enact channeling of information from research regarding Ayenee.

From YE 25 to YE 30 she got assigned to provide security to the Norian scientists who discovered a facility on the frontiers of the Yirune Arm. Things went fairly well for the most part until warnings from the Umarians about what had been found were disregarded. When the Umarians drove the Continuum out Nara was able to help get survivors to safety. Shortly after this she lent her skills to asset protection, ensuring Leviathan and Asune technology was implemented within the fleets.

While the Void Wars and Craethel War and the Declaration of Null were ongoing Nara was assigned to personnel protection of varying members of the Caeyara and Eitan Ysi. After the destruction of Noria and the death of Empress Sinith she helped provide crowd control ensuring survivors made it to colony ships. Upon Norian arrival near Xylar in the Kikyo Sector she went with Aelya Eitan while she accomplished her initial diplomatic tasks. When things settled with Operation Fireplace she was reunited with the Drenai ysi.

In the beginnings of YE 45 she signed up for an opportunity with Task Force Piglet. Immediately upon being accepted she began studying the Kodian language, becoming fairly proficient before her arrival to Fort Nozomi. Operations started off with a bang, mass chaos, and an old friend. During an initial ceremony she found a canister of pheromones that had aggravated at least one Kodian in the vicinity. Thanks to the help of her friend Itami she was able to successfully diffuse the aerosolized canister right in time for the station they were on to be rocked by an explosion. Due to not being used to zero gravity the ranger helped her back to the shuttle where most of the crew gathered. They were taken to an area near a System Material Exploitation and Recovery Center to assist with resolving some emergent issues that had arisen. Thankfully her gear was there which gave her the perfect opportunity to get into something more tactically appropriate than what she had been required to wear at the ceremony. News of Chairman Koda's death amped things up a notch, which led to Itami swiftly helping her get into some civilian power armor. The unofficial battle buddies seemed to stick together for the duration of initial entry.

After initial entry it appeared that they were self-determined battle buddies, as they had each others backs at every turn. Through the garage, down the shaft and the breach of the tunnel all seemed to go with minimal casualty. That is until molten copper slag was coming right towards her, and her close friend Itami. She shoved him out of the way taking the projectile square in the chest. As a result she incurred some rather serious injuries, multiple fractured ribs and severe bruising to the chest and abdomen. Emergency care was provided after she was brought to safety, thanks to a Kodian's use of nanites. The internal damage was healed within a day, but the bruising was of some discomfort for weeks. She attended the next mission briefing, but no one has seen or heard from her since.

Emerging from the shadows after her brief disappearance she visited a bar in Ternifac. There she ran into Rin Eitan who seemed more or less to be enjoying the atmosphere, they made small talk while she sipped her drink. She also had the pleasure of seeing a former team member from Gashmere, Sanda Hoshi. A few bits of awkward conversation led to an endearing ending that left Nara hoping that she might get to see or work with the brave woman again.

In YE 45.8 she met up with her sister Kytas Drenai in regards to a meeting about opportunities within the Asarthotar Palace Guard. While it would have been quite the advantageous experience for her to have accepted, she thought maintaining her mercenary status might have been better for her. At least for a time, which led her to throwing herself in with the Iron Company. Before departing she did have her memories backed up, less something happen to her while she was out and about in space.
