Evening In Roleplay

Sii'pylet 'Evening' Faeren New Tur'lista is a Player Character played by Annie. Her first name is pronounced 'SIH-PEH-LEET', while her family name is pronounced 'FAY-REEN'.

Physical Characteristics

Height: 5'6 (1.70m)

Mass: 150 Lbs. (68kg.)

Measurements: 36-30-38 (91-76-96cm)

Bra Size: 34D

Build and Skin Colour: The less-than-physical nature of her chosen field has allowed her a bit of leeway with her weight distribution, so to speak – soft all over, with not an ounce of muscle on her form, she's of a lush build with a smooth, pale ashen complexion.

Facial Features and Eye Color: Evening appears a bit younger than she really is (at least when considering the human equivalent of her age – she appears around 18 or so.). She has a rounded face with plush cheeks and lips, a slightly pointed but otherwise standard nose and full lips. Eyebrows are kept neat and thin, and her eyes are an expressive, intense, almost neon green, and are typically framed by a pair of black eyeglasses.

Hair Color and Style: Evening's hair is naturally a soft, snow white, but has been habitually dyed a dark, inky black color that shines blue in bright light. Her hair falls just above her shoulderblades and is usually pulled up or back into one or more 'tails', though when working she will tie it back into a tight bun at the back of her head and leave two long bangs to fall around her face.

Distinguishing Features: Of course, it's impossible not to spot the crow-black wings that sprout from her back – they're rather pathetic, mind you, in all their stunted glory, fluttering with soft and fluffy feathers the color of charcoal and proving to be perfectly useless for anything besides decoration.

Psychological Characteristics

Personality: An incredibly driven perfectionist who shows signs of possessing a slight Narcissus Complex. Highly professional and typically tolerable, though getting along with her on anything more than a professional level requires a bit of getting used to and a lot of patience. Usually, she seems impartial, detached, though she does have a sense of fiery passion that usually manifests itself in the form of a very, very bad temper – the product of the bad habit of bottling up her anger. However, she has, to say the least, a surprising bedside manner and tends to be very gentle (one could try to call it caring, but she'd just laugh it off.).

Likes: Warm tea, clean workspace, literature, rainstorms, hot showers, plants, pastries

Dislikes: Messes (especially a messy workplace.), know-it-alls (other than herself.), arguments that she can't win, hot weather, Coffee

Goals: To serve the Matriarchy, live a full life, die old and leave a beautiful corpse.

Behavioral Quirks

- Will often push an argument as far as she can, even if she knows she can't win.
- When angry, she breaks things, but only small things – it's not uncommon for her to replace several pairs of glasses in a year, or to have a trashcan full of snapped pencils and pens.
- Painfully sarcastic when irritated, mildly sarcastic when in a good mood.
- Tends to flutter her wings, especially when deep in thought.

History

Pre-RP

Evening was raised briefly and minimally in a rather standard home. She preferred books to interaction with others and didn't socialize much at all, so when she was sent off to school, it was no surprise that she breezed through all of her classes in the Occhestian Government Infant Education Program. She always turned out to be a fast learner, and ended up quickly bored due to a lack of challenge in some of the material.

It was not until her later years, well past Junior school that she even considered socialization with her peers, finding few and far between companions in the Occhestian Biological Science Education Program who shared her interest in biology. Deciding to take the path of a doctor, she joined the Advanced Medical Sciences Program, where she made a few more friends (though she barely saw it that way.), and even got to know some individuals outside of the Occhestan caste.

Due to her friendships, when the Occhestian government split from the Lorath Matriarchy during her internship, Evening decided to remain with the Matriarchy loyalists and continue her service to the Matriarchy, which motivated her to join the Lorath Self Defense Force and serve to protect her interests while at the same time allowing her to practice medicine which would be vital to the survival of others.

Skills

Communications

Speaking her native tongue of Lorath comes quite naturally. She is also fluent in Yamataian and the Trade language, as well as reading and writing all three languages. Hailing from the New Tur'lista caste, this is one of her strong suits, capable of delivering clear, concise reports and decoding certain messages.

Knowledge

Blessed with mostly book smarts, she has studied various aspects of the law as well as science and history. She also can trace the origins of certain types of technology. Her memory is very sharp, both long and short term.

Technology Operations

Lorath technology, along with certain off-world items that have been introduced into Lorath society, are typically familiar to her – and if they are not familiar or are particularly new, their workings are easily learned if given appropriate time and materials – she's a big fan of reading the manuals, after all.

Humanities

While this is not applied as often as one would expect, Evening is relatively knowledgeable of the various aspects of psychology and sociology. This allows her to deal with distressed or potentially hostile individuals, usually (and that is a big 'if', given her personality.) without getting her head bitten off (figuratively and literally...), and her study of the mind and reactions of different individuals typically gives her the know-how to say the 'right' things in various situations, including negotiations, and even interrogation. Still, emotions tend to interfere so this isn't one of her more practiced skills.

Biology

Anatomy and the internal workings of various organisms is rather essential for her work. She has an extensive knowledge of a myriad of Lorath lifeforms and is always excited to find another species to inspect.

Medical and Science

She is qualified for a vast degree of medical work in general - while she does not specialize in any particular field, she is more than able to perform various tasks; most anything from first-aid to moderate surgery. She is also relatively well-versed in installation and maintenance of cybernatic parts, as most of the New Tur'lista take an interest in.

Culinary

Evening bakes (and how.). Her affinity for sweets has led an interest beyond simply consuming; she can create a variety of baked goods, and while she'll typically create dessert items, she can also make various sorts of Breads and knows how to put together nice, if not rich, meals.
