Physical Description

Angel is a 5'11 Bi-gendered Nepleslian, who's body leans to being more female in features. At first glance she is all woman with a very curvy figure that is somewhat toned, wide hips and a DD cup chest. A full head of butt length red hair, which frames a soft and supple face of freckled cheeks, and deep violet eyes. However, she was also born with male genitalia, in addition to that of a female with the correct organs for both.

Personality

Angela is quite shy, but outspoken when the confidence can be found. Usually a quiet lass, she keeps to herself, living as a wall flower of sorts. Hard work and helping others motivate this woman to action, or at east to get up in the morning at least. That isn't to say she is a slacker, but she enjoys doing work, given her social ineptitude with people, particularly when hit on. Her sexual identity has been a bit of a stigma, and the cause behind much of her withdrawn nature.

History

Born on 2/10/YE20, Angela was the daughter of Bernard and Sophia Hartbrook, a family of industrial workers on Planet Nepleslia.

Much to the surprise of Angela's parents, she was born with both complete sets of sex organs associated with male and female, however her body was physically female. This lead to a very confusing childhood, one that caused her to become rather reserved, but chose to identify as female given to the naked eye she was when clothed. Being a wall flower as she grew up, she had few friends, usually only the persistent ones. Finally in YE 29, her family decided to move somewhere quieter, so they moved out west to the frontier, eventually settling on Cavalon where they started their lives as farmers in there new world as crops became viable for planting.

Angela enjoyed the less populated world, and the quiet life it offered, if albeit bought with hard work. This lead for an appreciation for hard work and what one could obtain from it, eventually joining her parents in running the farm. Around her parents and the few animals they had, she had no need to be shy, no need to be reserved. Everyday from dawn til dusk, she worked happily with a pep in her step. Even in YE 39 when the OSO took control, nothing really changed for the happy farm girl. Her family lived just far enough outside the main colony to only find out about events until later, but they worried her parents nonetheless.

In YE 40 with the collapse of the OSO, when some of the few colonists of Osman with access to spacecraft stopped by Cavalon for supplies, and spread the news of the collapse, things seemed to continue normally, however her parents worried about what would happen without a parent government to handle planetary defense. Despite Angela's protests, her parents sent her on one such transport with the other refugees bound for elsewhere. Bernard and Sophia Hartbrook sent her away with the goal to find a life of her own, outside the farm, and to live a life she could call her own through hard work by her hands. They hoped she would find a new source of confidence among the people of someplace better off, but not those of where the family hailed from. With tears in her eyes, and a uncertainty in her mind, Angela found herself brought to the New Dusk Conclave.

Now in YE 41, with a lack of means to start her own farm as of yet, Angela is living a modest life as an office worker. Having previously worked as such for a private merchant, however she was offered a job in a new government supported company. Offered better pay, she now works for the new company slated to be called "Black Wing Enterprises".

Skills Learned

Agricultural

Angela has spent most of her life working on her parent's farm. Having done this kind of work for so many years, she is very well experienced in the planting, tending, and harvesting of various crops. In addition she knows how to take care of and gather from various farm animals.

Domestic

Even before living on her own, Angela had learned to cook for herself in her earlier years. Comparable to being a gourmet chef, Angela knows how to mix and prepare ingredients into delicious meals, as well being well versed in the use of fresh ingredients. The young woman is also knowledgeable in how to produce things such as cheese, wines, and other complex to craft ingredients.

Office

Angela has unexpectedly become very apt at managing records and information, as well as keeping track of data and managing schedules due to her experience on the farm. She is almost as effective behind a desk, as she is running day to day operations in the fields.
