Physical Description

Amy stands at a height of 5'4" with a runner's build, lithe with a slightly below average chest. She has long straight white hair that reaches her waist, when on duty she keeps it up in a professional looking bun. She also has a pretty face in a girl next door kind of way. Her eyes are sky blue.

Personality

Amy has a friendly and relaxed personality, probably too relaxed considering her generous definition of words like “classified” and “illegal hacking” and “please stop modifying police drones”. When off duty she enjoys messing around with her drones, arguing with her AI, Abigail, finding out just how secure various secure government servers really are and watching old cop films.

When in the field Amy takes on a more serious persona, she is very thorough in her drone scouting and information collecting as well as any electronic warfare the mission may call for.

History

Amy was born to a Nepleslian mother and father on Planet Nepleslia in Funky City, with two younger brothers coming along a few years later. Her father serves in the military as a decorated platoon leader and her mother is an extremely tough woman, able to handle all three of the children alone most of the time while their father was on deployment.

As she grew up, Amy always had a fascination with technology which was encouraged by her parents. Despite being quite smart she only barely made it out of school, having spent far too much time with a computer and the few basic robots she could get a hold of instead of studying. Amy spent a few years working dead end fast food jobs after school while brushing up on her computer skills, until one particularly boring Saturday night she made the mistake of trying to get into the police forces' servers. Although she made it in and had a fun few hours of browsing classified files, she didn't do it unnoticed, and a few hours later her family's tiny flat was host to a police raid. Thanks to her fathers position she avoided a jail sentence, but after an extraordinarily over the top apology and a lengthy talking to by both her father and a police sergeant, she ended up being forced into taking a job with the police force to better make use of her skills.

Skills Learned

Owing to basic police training and her own self taught technology know how, Amy has a variety of skills.

Communication

She is predictably a very quick typist. Thanks to her training at the police academy she is well versed in radio usage and protocols.

Languages known

Amy is fluent in both Trade and Yamataigo.

Fighting

Thanks to her police training Amy knows her way around a firearm, although she struggles to handle high recoil or heavy weapons so is most comfortable with SMGs and pistols. Her aim is suitably average but unless there is a truly dire situation, she won't ever have to test it.

Strategy (Tactics/discipline)

She can understand and give out tactical commands and work with her team to follow those commands efficiently. She knows the importance of teamwork and works with her team to make best use of her drones and hacking tools to make sure everyone gets home safe.

Technology

Amy is a complete whizz with technology, she is incredibly knowledgeable about robotics, shown in her constant tinkering with her drones to improve and customise them. She is also an expert with computers and hacking, able to make it into most secure systems with little effort, although there are some very secure systems that even she can't get into and of course she can't hack computer systems with no connections to the outside world. She works alongside her fairy AI, Abigail, who can perform calculations and think far faster than even Amy can.

Drone operation

Amy is an expert at drone operating, able to manage several at a time and even more with help from Abigail.
