Physical Description

Ashley Bylon is a rather short and slender Nepleslian cyborg, standing at an unimpressive 5'0". Her skin is a creamy white tone, and her hair is black with yellow highlights running around the back and sides. Her hair is most often seen cut short into a sort of puffy bowl. While her eyes are naturally a light purple color, her right eye has been replaced with what looks to be a glowing yellow glass eye. A healed burn scar runs across the right side of her face, from her cheek to her eyebrow. Ashley has a black tattoo of a gear chain that runs around the right side of her torso above her hips.

While the center of her body appears to be in one organic piece, both of Ashley's arms have been replaced with flexible robotic augmentations, which bend a bit like noodles and are capable of expanding to an extended reach via hydraulics. Her hands can vary depending on what model she is using, ranging from relatively human-like digits to large industrial clamps. Ashley is most often seen wearing a mix of working and casual clothes, and enjoys the color yellow as well as long sleeves. She is almost always wearing a pair of black/brown heavy-duty working Boots that look like they're a size too large.

Personality

In many ways, Ashley is an off-beat person. While she tends to keep to herself and can even be suspicious around people she doesn't know, someone with the persistence to get to know her will find a good and loyal friend. Calling her a "moonchild" would be an accurate statement, as she tends to be tenacious and imaginative with her mind wandering wherever it goes. She may say things that make no sense at times, but she can surely find a way to make you believe it. She can be almost nocturnal at times, and takes great pride in her work, almost to a degree of competitiveness. To one she could be brilliant, to another, a rambling hippie. She tries to take pity in her injuries or need for cybernetics, and has viewed them as tools she needs to continue working. Despite this, her industrial cybernetics lead to some insecurity. Some say she was more open but mellow before the accident that caused her to lose her arms, and that she's even lost memory, but few get to hear the full story.

Likes: Engines, the color yellow, soup, idealism.

Dislikes: Aether reactors, strangers, key lime pie, overly critical people.
