Physical Description

- Height: 215cm
- Weight: 130kg

Terrance Nishimura's skin is an olive tone with subtle green undertones, a commonality among Nepleslian Red Solterran descendants, covering his dense musculature. His eyes, a piercing hazel, are sharp and observant, set under thick brows in a face where intelligence and tactical acumen are as clear as his physical prowess. The ears are standard human in shape, lying flat against the side of his head, partially obscured by dark, brown hair styled in a practical, yet stylish cut—short enough for efficiency without sacrificing a touch of rugged charm.

His facial structure is chiseled, with a square jawline and a straight nose, lending him a formidable visage softened only by the occasional knowing smirk. Distinguishing features include a well-maintained stubble.

Personality

Terrance Nishimura embodies a complex blend of discipline and intellect. With a personality as formidable as his frame, he is the epitome of a hard-working and goal-oriented individual. His motivations are rooted in duty and a profound sense of purpose; his goals are not just personal ambitions but are interwoven with the broader aspirations of the Nepleslian Reds. He is the kind of individual who would tirelessly pursue excellence in both physical prowess and strategic thought.

His habits include meticulous planning, regular physical training, and a disciplined routine that keeps his capabilities at their peak. He is not easily angered, maintaining an impressive level of self-control. His ire, once earned, is formidable but never rash. Brave without recklessness, he approaches danger with a cautious strategy, analyzing risks with a clear mind before proceeding.

Socially, he strikes a balance between approachability and an imposing aura that demands respect. He may prefer the company of those who share his dedication to their crafts—individuals who exhibit strength, intellect, and integrity. His past relationships were likely pragmatic yet not devoid of camaraderie; within the ranks, he would be seen as a reliable ally and a trusted leader.

His treatment of others is fair but firm. He expects from others the same level of commitment he gives and respects those who meet such standards. His social connections are characterized by a strong sense of loyalty; he values deep, meaningful bonds over superficial interactions. His social demeanor is thus respectful and professional, but with a capacity for warmth and understanding reserved for those who have proven their mettle and worth.

History

Terrance Nishimura was born in Shenhong City on YE 45.05.11. Part of Fujiko Development Corporation Project Titan to develop a better breed of leaderships and experts using the Lily Type Artificial Nepleslian and the Zhenren Human Upgrade Package as a base, Terrance is even more special compared to his batch brothers and sisters. Where most were created as new individuals using the memories from a collection of individuals, Terrance is the continuation of a former NMX Neko by the name of X. Killed in an industrial accident, he will opt to donate her life experience and memories to “properly” integrate into the Reds instead of simply being given new life with a Soul Transfer.

Skills Learned

Terrance Nishimura has the following notable skills:

Fighting

From his inception, Terrance was ingrained with a combat prowess that combines the efficiency of a machine with the adaptability of a seasoned warrior. Trained in close quarters and ranged combat, he is proficient in a variety of martial arts, as well as the strategic use of firearms and bladed weapons. His hand-to-hand combat skills are honed to precision, enabling him to disarm or disable opponents with swift, calculated movements. These skills were acquired through his deep sleep VR simulations, live exercises, and rigorous sparring sessions, where his body's muscle memory was fine-tuned for lethal efficiency.

Engineering

Engineering for Terrance is second nature. His education involved intensive problem-solving and mechanical training, teaching him how to construct, modify, and repair a vast array of mechanical and electronic devices. Whether on a workshop bench or in the heat of battle, Terrance can diagnose and rectify malfunctions in vehicular or weaponry systems, often improvising solutions with whatever materials are at hand. His engineering abilities were cultivated in controlled learning environments that simulated the most challenging technical failures, ensuring that he could overcome any obstacle.

Leadership

Leadership is ingrained in Terrance's DNA, both literally and figuratively. His training encapsulated the essentials of command—from tactical decision-making to morale maintenance. He is adept at delegation, possessing a keen eye for his team's strengths and weaknesses. His authoritative presence is tempered by his capacity to listen, making him a respected figure among his peers. These skills were instilled through both theoretical learning and practical application, leading squads in training missions and partaking in leadership simulations.

Medical and Science

Medical knowledge is crucial on the battlefield, and Terrance is trained to triage, treat, and stabilize injuries until further medical help can be acquired. His scientific expertise extends to xenobiology and pathology, allowing him to identify alien diseases and their potential treatments. His understanding of anatomy also makes it easier for him to identify weakspots. These skills were acquired at advanced medical training facilities where he practiced on lifelike models and attended seminars from leading medical professionals in military and xenobiological sciences.

Starship Operations

Terrance is adept in the operational aspects of starship control, from piloting to system management. He understands the nuances of astrogation, sensor arrays, and can even perform emergency repairs if needed. His training involved immersive courses in simulated environments that mimicked the control centers of various classes of starships, enabling him to familiarize himself with a variety of control schemes and operational protocols.

Survival and Military

Survival skills are key for any soldier, and Terrance is no exception. He can navigate treacherous terrain, forage for food, build shelters, and signal for assistance. His military training also covered guerrilla warfare tactics and camouflage, making him a capable opponent in any environment. These skills were imparted through survival camps and tactical training exercises in a variety of ecosystems, ranging from dense forests to arid deserts.

Technology Operation

Terrance is highly proficient in the use of advanced technology, including computers, networking systems, and hacking protocols. His understanding of nodal system architecture allows him to interface seamlessly with a variety of computer systems, whether for gathering intelligence or for system infiltration. His technological adeptness was fostered through cyber-warfare drills and hands-on training with cutting-edge equipment, ensuring he could contend with any technological challenge or cyber-threat.
