Physical Description

- Height: 180cm (approx. 5'11")
- Mass: 42Kg (Approx. 92.6lbs)
- Hair color: Blonde
 - Style: Messy, but usually gut to a medium-short length.

 - Span: 405cm (13'4”)

Armin is a typical, if slightly shorter than normal, Caelisolan young man with a messy shock of sandy blonde hair. Their slightly pale skin tone draws attention to their borderline iridescent eyes, which always seem to be more vivid than normal when he smiles. His sparrow-shaped wings, much like his twin brother, are cream-colored and allow him to fly under his own power, given the right amount of space.

Personality

In a word, Armin is outgoing. With his little brother almost always by his side, Armin loves to take risks and enjoy whatever live tries to knock him down with. Essentially inseparable, he and his twin are incredibly easy to become friendly with while not on duty, if slightly overwhelming in the overall excitability department. The young man often loves to tease his brother about their ages, but rarely means anything serious by his actions and words.

Despite giving the vibe of being “prankster twins” to those around them, both Armin and Arcturus are rare to actually embarrass or in some way humiliate or pull jokes on other people; it is actually more likely Armin will make a fool of himself in his free time rather than of others. It wouldn't be unheard of for him to be too caught up in excitement to miss some of the finer details of the people around him.

On duty, Armin often prefers to take routes to his objective that seem to be non-conventional. He can take some time to analyze a battle to gather a variable amount of information, though this is typically a fruitless endeavor in the long run. If he needs to, however, he can act rather quickly relying on his gut instincts, though he rarely likes to do so.

History

Armin Sargas was born in YE 19 on New Elysia, only a couple minutes before Arcturus Sargas.

Having grown up on the essentially freshly-claimed world of New Elysia, Armin and his brother grew together incredibly quickly. The children often stayed out of trouble as they grew up, typically learning quickly from any of their mistakes-a fairly strict upbringing, without being a game of micro-management, likely led to this. When the Fourth War happened, the young boys-only about the age of five years-were kept at home for their own safety; being as young as they were neither of the twins knew what was going on at the time.

As the war finally faded into history, though, the household began to relax again; the Sargas brothers would start going back to school, and generally life seemed to become overall uneventful for the two boys. The two or so years of isolation didn't seem to have many effects on them negatively-in fact, they seemed to return to society with increased vigor. Aside from the somewhat unsteady peace between the factions after their fourth major conflict, society managed to progress for a few more years without issue.

As the Second Mishhuvurthyar War continued to draw in close to home, tensions on the planet began to rise, and many families around the brothers, including their own, prepared for the worst-be it annihilation, forced evacuation, or otherwise. Terrified, the family had hunkered down in their small home, scouring the news for anything hopeful.

With the arrival of the YSS Eucharis, the family seemed to breathe a large sigh of relief-though much of the city was in disarray, they still would have survived the war. And with such an impressive display of power, Yamatai's army of stars earned the favor of the Sargas family, however insignificant it was at the time.

Some time after the war had ended, the twins, with their parent's blessings and their newly-made Caelisolan bodies, volunteered to join the Army, deciding that piloting small craft would be the best option for them. Although the brothers had progressed through training normally, they had been stationed at Fort Victory Reserve Center for some time.

In Armin's own words: "Driving a tank is like flying a starfighter when it comes down to it. Pay attention and don't be stupid, and unless the odds were actually against you you'll get to where you need to be." He and his brother have trained specially in the use of tankettes and similar ground-based vehicles.
