Distinguishing Features: Very large eyes for her face, giving her a very innocent and charming appearance.

Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Setsuko is an extremely curious and inquisitive character, and will go to extreme lengths to figure out how something works, usually completely disregarding any dangers or inhibitions that might be involved.

Having long ago discarded her common sense, and deleted any information regarding ever HAVING such a thing in the first place from her digital mind, Setsuko considers it to be an irritant that gets in the way of science and her work as both a medic and a scientist, allowing her to think radically “out of the box” so to speak, while still holding to the training she received during medical school and her scientific studies.

Despite having forsaken her common sense, Setsuko has strong maternal feelings, leading her to do whatever she can to ease her patients pains and cure and aid them. She also has a very weak spot for children of any age.

Likes: Discovering new things, learning, biology, xenobiology, dancing, understanding how something works, improving things, making people feel better, children. Dislikes: Common sense, not being allowed to work science, the word “no”, loud noises, being disturbed while playing/working, ignorant people. Goals: Having her scientific exploits recognized and known throughout the Empire, becoming a mother, becoming a famous scientist and official xenobiologist to the Yamatai Star Army.

History

Pre-RP

Having been created by the Ketsurui Zaibatsu, Setsuko was always highly curious, displaying an interest in her creation far higher than the average NH-29 Series Nekovalkyrja created by the Zaibatsu at a daily basis. The scientists in charge of Setsuko did nothing to hamper or diminish her curiosity, and allowed her access to the general knowledge available to the average soldier.

But, Setsuko's curiosity could not be sated, only temporarily lessened, and soon she began studying on her own, consuming any tidbit of information and knowledge she could stumble upon, never giving up on her first initial curiosity regarding the inner workings of the Nekovalkyrja, which thus spurred her onto her future path as a biologist and xenobiologist.

It was only logical then, that Setsuko applied for medical and scientific studies after her initial training was over, spending extra time at both classes simply to advance her knowledge and skills (and sate her incredible curiosity). It was during her training years, when her medical instructors were teaching the young Nekovalkyrja the basics of the Azoreans that Setsuko decided that common sense was only an irritant, as it got in the way of her creative thinking when it came to science and medical lines. Despite having abandoned her common sense, Setsuko graduated with highest honours.
