Physical Description

She has long Cyan hair, blue eyes, and a peaches-and-cream (pale with light pink accents) complexion. She resembles both of her parents.

Personality

Reserved and thoughtful, she does her best to be a model officer. She has a deep appreciation for the Separatists and their religion. She prides herself on her integrity, doing what she knows is right regardless of the consequences. She is grounded and logical even in very stressful situations. She has a deep respect for the structure and tradition, but feels that they have to be grounded in a objective analysis. As a result, she has a turbulent time with ideas that she doesn't agree with.

Relationship to the Values of her Clan

She has spent a lot of time outside of the clan, working with species and people who the rest of her clan might look down on. This has promoted values that are slightly different from the typical for a Motoyoshi. While she believes in the structure and institutions of the empire, such as the Star Army. She doesn't believe that Nekos are inherently superior in any meaningful respect than other species. She believes that the different species make for a better whole of the empire. She views the Senate as having delegated authority rather than an inherent authority. While she believes that power should be delegated, she believes that the empress is the source of that power. She is also an expansionist, believing that Yamatai has done a lot of good for the places they have conquered. She does her best to bring scientific scrutiny to her beliefs. Overall, because she values contributions from a wider group of people, this aligns her political beliefs more closely with the discourse party than with her own clan.

Despite the differences, she is proud of being Katsuko's daughter and a member of the Motoyoshi clan. She deeply loves her parents and siblings, and isn't afraid to show it. She has dedicated her life to the Star Army, and ensuring the greatness of Yamatai.

History

Motoyoshi Inari was born in YE 39 to Ketsurui-Motoyoshi Katsuko and Motoyoshi Eri. Born with both of their strong drives to protect the Empire, she joined the Star Army immediately, going through science training. Assigned to the Seventh fleet, she was stationed on Essia when the Kuvexian invasion happened. Her analytical mind and science background meant she was often obtaining and working with Kuvexian technology. She fought in the resistance, hiding and striking back when she could. She provided valuable analysis of Kuvexian equipment and capabilities to the resistance. She met Mario during the occupation, he was a student at a university on Essia studying Agricultural Genetics. However, with the occupation he joined a direct action resistance cell that saw a lot of fighting.

After the occupation ended, she was a part of the intelligence efforts to assess the effect of the occupation on Essia and to root out Kuvexian collaborators. In early YE 42, she was assigned to the first expeditionary fleet. She participated in scientific analysis of the Glimmergold system leading into the Battle of Glimmergold.
