Physical Description

Shōko has a tall and tightly packed feminine frame with perfectly tanned skin and plenty of curves. She has a facial features of a model; an simple slender nose and a pair of wild shocking pink eyes. The Neko samurai keeps her silky jet black hair long mostly tied in a side tail which lays over her shoulder, with a simple bang that draws a straight line over her thin brow. The hair's length when let down comes to her middle back when undone. Shōko's general over all appearance makes her seem as if her designer had made her in the image of a underwear model or gravure idol.

Psychological Characteristics

Shōko's installed bravery manifested in a rather bold and fearless way. As her designer had been up quite late when she was being created and rather inspired from some rather naughty things. Her personality was designed at first by just fooling around with settings, but later was saved and put into her programming before he could change it. Thus she acts very directly, and sultry in her basic mannerisms without really knowing why. She obviously has a deep curiosity for the world around her, as she had only just been created and set into the world. She has no trauma or issues left imprinted upon her from start-up.

Biography

History

Shōko was created by the Ketsurui Zaibasu as part of a regular census rotation. Her designer was a young tech who was left alone at the controls to cover a late shift. He did have a set list of proper variables he was to adhere to. However during the more later hours of the night, after entertaining himself with some gravure idol mags, and some adult videos. He found himself simply at first screwing around with the Neko editor, creating a girl of his current fantasies. However just as he was about to delete the file and continue on with his mundane work, a chain reaction of mishaps led him to strike the wrong things and the design was uploaded onto Shōko.

From there Shōko was processed like normal and shipped off to her initial training, where she was given extra physical and etiquette training as to properly be prepared for her station at the samurai house.
