Titus is athletically built, his body honed with military efficiency and effectiveness. He appears as an average Minkan, he does not physically stand out by much from anybody else except in his eyes, his eyelashes are abnormally long and their color is striking. He is built in a northerner style, clean shaven and moderately comely in his averageness, though his only regret is that he left behind a body hardened by the harshness of the north for this new body that can handle the harshness of warfare. His voice can range from a high tenor to a medium bass and he's a fairly good singer when he really gets into it.

Personality

Titus is by all accounts a good soldier. He follows orders and works well with others on a team or squadron. He has a tactical and focused mind and is truly at home in the cockpit of a Starfighter.

He enjoys the company of others and is quick to trust those who've proven themselves trustworthy. Though he's comfortable around people he's not exactly a social butterfly or socially adept, while he is pretty quiet around those he doesn't know he speaks whatever is on his mind around those who do for better or worse, if there is something troubling him he is more than willing to bare his soul to the friend that will listen and keep his confidence.

In general he is bluntly honest, sometimes savagely so or even to his own detriment. His helpfulness extends beyond his service in the military and he's generally willing to do anything asked of him, he's wary of those that might take advantage of his kindness but honestly he decided that so long as he is doing a good or right thing there is nothing wrong with others laughing at his expense.

History

Titus grew up on the planet Yamatai in the northern city of Ralt. He was originally born a Geshrin when he was growing up, all the way until they came out with the new Minkan model and he transferred over when he joined the military and began training. Growing up in Ralt wasn't easy, the harsh climate drove the people in the city together. Survival wasn't much of a concern but they knew that they were making due with less, and honestly Titus didn't mind it at all.

His dad grew up in the north, while his mother came from Tania. They raised their son and daughter themselves, his father showing Titus the secrets to living off the land, to survival and hunting. He treasured these memories and skills throughout his life. A constant dream of his was to fly one day, to be able to pilot a plane and go wherever he wanted in the bright blue sky, that dream never went away but it did change slightly the day he saw his first in atmosphere training exercise of the Yamatai space fighter force. Seeing those sleek craft soar through the air at sound breaking speed gave him a new goal, and that was to one day join the military and become a pilot.

Ever since that day of revelation he stuck to his goal and didn't waver. He worked hard, learned the skills he needed, and took charge of his life. When he finally joined the military his ultimate goal was, and still is, to be an ace pilot.
