History

Founded in YE 44, Infinity∞Gate is a Corporation headquartered on Essia System. Deriving Gate Wormhole technology from Freespacers, Nepleslia, and others, they began to create their own network of Gates separate from the Freespacer Gate system that Essia was connected to, the Zvonock Gate System, or others. It is not compatible with them due to them creating their own version of the technology. Qantir Volontany owns 51% of the company through the Volontany Group. The rest of it's stock is traded on all exchanges.

Description

For a small fee, Infinity∞Gate allows use of their Tollgates to travel much faster across large areas of space than even fast starships. They use paired Tollgate technology, which means that one Tollgate connects to only one other Tollgate. Due to the dangers of collisions in the wormhole, they use a unique double gate that resembles an infinity symbol. When oriented to the system, the left gate is for departures and the right gate is for arrivals. The arrival gate has red lights and the departure gate uses green lights. Tollgates are very slow but mobile and are not sold by Infinity∞Gate, but can be leased if someone wants a Tollgate without tolls (this is often called a Freegate.)

Usage

This is used by ship captains and corporations who are willing to pay a small fee to transit swiftly from one point to another.

Facilities

They run a factory that makes the Tollgates and Eight pairs of Tollgates. Six of them are linkages, one as a backup for maintenance on the others, and one as a testbed. Their employees are mostly Separa'Shan and Freespacers.
