The Lo'ken Institute the first state-owned corporation of Tsenlan in the Yamatai Star Empire.

Historical and Background

Life is a grand adventure, or so it was declared in YE 44 when the Tsenlan State Quorum opened the Lo'Ken Institute shortly after Arrival of the Norians. Lo'ken is a Tsenlan-owned design, manufacturing, distribution, and sales firm. It was founded in the Yamatai Star Empire. Many expected their endeavors would be geared towards Norian interests, but the corporation announced when the ribbon was metaphorically cut that it would try to gear its products towards all those living in the Yamatai Star Empire too.

The company would quickly become known for its overly polished commercials, images of snow-covered pine trees, and gurgling half-frozen creeks. It would be something they would keep up whether the product they were selling was a bottle of toothpaste or a bomb to the Star Army of Yamatai. The starter funds for the corporation are from the Lok'en Institute - Ketsurui Zaibatsu Trade and Cooperation Agreement and trade of goods from the Arks.

The focus of the Lo'ken Institute is the manufacturing, sales, and distribution of Leviathan Technology:

- Filling the matters discussed in the Lok'en Institute - Ketsurui Zaibatsu Trade and Cooperation Agreement.
- The construction of Sanctuary Technology cities on Akina.
- The manufacturing of Leviathan Technology goods for sale in the Yamatai Star Empire.

They also plan to create business ventures for Tsenlanese populations:

- Support of the Artisan Guilds. Including the development of supporting ventures and start-ups.
- Support, Staffing and Contributions to the Tsenlanese Cultural Center.
- The sale of Goods for Tsenlanese people that they cannot normally acquire.
