

Sumeria Class Mecha

The Sumeria was the first fielded prototype and basis for what all the corporation's mechs in the Terror Wolf Project were built upon. The original Sumeria was little more than an up-armored forklift style manned heavy-equipment loader made for lifting or securing equipment in zero-G and airless environments such as those found on the corporation's home on Freehold Factory.

The Sumeria was named such after being retrofitted into a portable heavy weapons platform in YE 41 to take the fight against rival salvage corporations who refused to acknowledge the Mad Mutants claim and that of her corporations claim over the entirety of freehold as its defacto heirs after the right to freehold was given by the clone of the last known master of the world.

The Sumeria, Armed with whatever heavy weapons where available, often a corporation built heavy laser of some kind on one hardpoint and a small rack of spacer manufactured rockets on the other, proved its worth as the corporation was finally able to push back against its perceived squatters and claim jumpers until it showed its final worth against roving Deathcrawler Auto-Tank tanks and hostile automata proved that an up-armored forklift should be the start of the corporation's endeavors in such a platform, but not its last.

The Sumeria platform was decommissioned and any active mecha were returned to their original purpose before the end of YE 41 as newer and actual combat-oriented mecha were built by the corporation to enforce its claim on freehold.
