

AAF Medical Pack

The primary Medical Kit of Combat Medics and Medical Technicians for the Abwehran Armed Forces \(AAF\) created during the Second Quarter of AF 260 (YE 32).

Visual Description

The cyan Messenger Bag that is approximately 60 centimeters wide, 46 centimeters tall, and 15 centimeters thick, the AAF Medical Pack is the only container approved by the Abwehran Armed Forces \(AAF\) to carry everything a Combat Medic needs into battle. The main pouch can be accessed via a large flap with an Orange Cross¹⁾ upon it and is divided into four padded sections organized by number, which allows a medic to grab what they need easily. Outside the main pouch are three smaller front pouches used to contain non-fragile, yet essential medical gear to treat wounded quickly and efficiently. These smaller pouches are organized by the Abwehran characters for “Compassion”, “Duty”, and “Loyalty”.

There are also two pouches on either side that are used to carry containers of water and sterilizing fluids. It can be carried by either a shoulder strap, a top handle, or even clipped to a AAF Light Infantry Armor's Backpack with specialized clips on the back.
