

HTT-5 "Regard" Shotgun

The HTT-5 is a double-barreled, pump-action, magazine-loaded shotgun popular with chelti armies due to its simplicity of use coupled with its variety of available ammunition.

Feature

- It's a shotgun.

About the HTT-5 "Regard"

The Regard serves as both weapon, and utility. Its barrel length makes it useful at medium range, while specialty ammunition makes it deadly in close quarters. Its use as a utility also allows it to be used as an emergency access device, impromptu flamethrower, and mini-grenade launcher.

Nomenclature Information

- Designer: Nation Armories
- Manufacturer: Chelti
- Name: HTT-5 "Regard" Shotgun
- Nomenclature: Cz-W-SG-5
- Type: Chemical Propulsion
- Role: Shotgun
- Length: 64cm
- Mass: 3.8kg

Appearance

Two cylindrical barrels mounted horizontally onto a fairly terrestrial trigger system but with a slightly enlarged trigger guard for alien fingers. In front of the trigger system sits a two stack magazine with firing chamber above and behind it. Under the two barrels is a pump action slider, often having a vertical foregrip attached. A full length stock makes for comfortable shooting and comes in a variety of materials including stamped metal, wood, pressed metal and cast.

The magazines resemble two conventional double stack box magazines of large size due to shell size with their bottoms attached to a metal connector plate.

Discharge Information

- Muzzle Flash: Dirty orange (depending on charge), gas vapors ejected with force to the sides due to barrel structure.

- Retort: Alarming
 - Projectile/Beam Appearance: Usually like multiple pieces of metal flying very fast.
- Effective Range 300m
- Rate of Fire: Manual Semi-Auto
- Recoil: Backwards
