

Elysian Escape Pods

The Elysian escape pods are small organic pods, similar to a cocoon, little larger than an Elysian Patrician lying prone. They utilize a form of stasis to reduce the need for nutrients and Water, with one pod being marked specifically for use by the captain, or the highest ranking soldier present. This pod creates a partial stasis, reducing the need for nutrients, but leaving their mind capable of interacting with the pod's systems to monitor the other pods. The pods are typically ejected by weakening the organic armor section around the launch point temporarily, with the pods relying on a small CDD system for their shielding after departing from the ship. The pods are approximately 2.5 meters long by 2 meters wide by about 1.5 meters deep.
