

Crataeis Type Main Battle Cannon

Instead of going for a weapon that could destroy multiple targets as other Gun-ships possessed, the designers of the Crataeis instead improved upon an existing Elysian technology to create a devastating weapon when fired against a single target. The weapon functions by firing a large pulse of anti-matter plasma which is phased outside of the universe for a time. This means that it easily passes through shields and partially through the hull of the ship before it returns to this universe. The anti-plasma appearing inside the hull, or even inside the main body of the ship, is usually significant enough to either destroy the vessel or a very large section of it.

Location: Built in to the front of the ship. Primary Purpose: Anti-starship. Secondary Purpose: Heavy Assault. Damage: Tier 12, Heavy Anti-Starship Range: 2,000,000km. Rate of Fire: 1 pulse every ten seconds.
