

Don't Worry, Curry!

Don't Worry, Curry! is a chain of restaurants that serve delectable Food cuisine that is run by Iromakuanhe. Don't Worry Curry is known for their traditional meals utilizing the herbs, vegetables, and meats of the Iromakuanhe and their home worlds as well as allowing patrons to enjoy a dose of medicinal drugs before their meal, if requested.

More about Don't Worry, Curry!

After years of making these dishes in their home, a large family of Iromakuanhe named the I'Duzool family started up their own restaurant on the bottom floor of their home. It was wildly popular and they opened a second restaurant operated by one of the younger members of the family. It failed miserably until he began to add in an element to the store that was unbeknownst to the I'Duzool's business model. He started having Slajatki-on served at the beginning of the meals for those patrons that wished to imbibe in the legal Iromakuanhe drug before their meals, wherein a sense of increased euphoria ¹⁾ is felt in the user.

The business took off in ways it hadn't even begun to do before he had come up with this business plan. Shortly after, his sister came up with the catchy name and opened up her own restaurant, then another family member opened up their own. Soon, family friends and business partners alike were striking deals with the I'Duzool family to operate their own Don't Worry, Curry! restaurants.

For the same price, every dish made with ingredients from Maekardan can be "unfiltered", i.e. the food itself will have hallucinogenic spores native to the planet.

Management Style: Family Owned and Independently Operated.
