Overview

This drug uses a modified version of the peptide hormone, oxyntomodulin, which is normally created in the small intestine after meals. It informs the human brain that it has eaten a meal. By using this drug, one can trick his brain into thinking that you have eaten, and remove hunger. To use simply inject 30 minutes before each meal. This allows the person to eat less, and aid weight loss, especially by reducing snacking. It should of course also be accompanied by an increase in exercise.

As usual with Emrys Industries drugs it comes in a metal cylinder that can be injected without harming the skin by making the skin under the cylinder highly absorbent for a short period of time.
