Appearance

The Concussion Vambrace is a single piece of armor that takes up the forearm of a suit of power armor. It is a simple looking metal vambrace made of Durandium Alloy and made with little taste for aesthetic or shape, and more for form and function. The vambrace sports two tube like barrels on its side that deliver a blast of directed force, assisted by a small sensor sensing just before the fist would make contact with a target, with a directed blast of force capable of sundering armor,
