Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Duhal is considered by many of his peers to be slightly arrogant and condescending. To his credit, he is still able to be an effective Officer just perhaps not the most well liked. His secret to leadership is the probably the most well-liked thing about him, he leads from the front. Not one to sit back and let others fight for him he has often times gotten his hands dirty right alongside his crew. He likes collecting pistols, both from Antiquity and from his victories in Duels. He considers his older collection as a way for him to connect to Clan Douall how they once were and how he hopes to help make them again. He was taught that he, like much of the newest generation of the clan, must strive to bring back the illustrious name of the Douall clan.

Background

- Arisn Lan'Fir Douall (Grandfather)
- Gaeyle Lan'Fir Douall (Father)
- Mirin Lan'Fir Douall (Mother)
- Erikt Lan'Fir Douall (Twin Brother)

Though Clan Douall no longer had the prestige it once did, they still had the monetary means to grant a comfortable way of life to its families. The Lan'Fir family was well off in the Capital Kurumtamtu. Duhal was raised without lack of anything which strongly fed into his arrogance and snootiness. Though being in a Clan that suffered such a downfall really ate at him and his generation he still found ways to at least act superior.

He was easily the more social and outgoing of him and his brother. While he was quick of foot and wit his brother was the strong silent type which Duhal used to his personal advantage quite often. It certainly helped him through life to have a bodyguard that was almost required to protect him. It was decided early on that the brothers would be put into service to the military and both were offered their choice of Officer professions. While Erikt chose the Army, Duhal chose the Navy which he knew would allow him to raise in rank quickly and had a lower mortality rate comparatively.

In his early years of service Duhal found a passion for pistols. He became an excellent shot and thanks to his innate arrogance and condescending attitude led to many duels for both his personal, familial and Clan's honor. It was also during this time that he began collecting Pistols, both antique and those of who he prevailed over in duels.
