Eyes and Facial Features: Vetel has cat-like pupils with full, lime green, starburst irises. Her face is thin, with her cheeks slowly sloping downward to a slightly pointy chin.

Ears: Vetel's ears are simply holes in the sides of her head, like other aliens.

Hair Color and Style: Vetel has thick, royal purple dreadlock-like tentacles protruding from her head and pulled back to rest along the rear of it. The tentacles which are closest to the front of her head / her face wear three small silver bangles near the base, touching each other.

Distinguishing Features: The right side of Vetel's face is scarred white from an oil burn, starting just above her brow and ending at the bottom of her jaw. The scar is not visible on her nose or lips.

Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Vetel is a generally optimistic and happy-go-lucky person, with a charming and cheerful demeanor. She revels in the joys of being alive and sees each new day as an opportunity to spread happiness and compassion. She is very outgoing with most people, especially her colleagues, but has a tendency to be shy and withdrawn towards those in a position of authority. She has a deep-seated feeling of shame over her failure to achieve anything in the field she originally pursued as a career choice (cooking), but also has a strong moral conviction that her decision to change careers to medicine was the right one given the circumstances. When in combat, Vetel adopts a more serious and composed mien, in order to improve the chances of survival for both herself and her comrades. Somewhat uncharacteristically of aliens, she has a hearty appreciation for "useless cleverness," and enjoys partaking in the arts of alien cultures more than her own.

- Likes: Eating, drinking, partying, reading, singing, painting and generally having a good time.
- Dislikes: Being put "on the spot." Also, dealing with authority figures, bigots, jerks, depressing people, or staunch traditionalists.
- Goals: To one day explore the galaxy and spread her ideals of love and joy.

Pre-RP

Vetel was born into a very traditional Sermac family, and was brought up as a stereotypical serving girl from a young age. She was taught how to clean and how to cook, and was eventually sent to a cooking school by her parents in order to become a chef. While there, she thrived, until she one day suffered from severe chemical burns to her face when a vat of boiling oil splashed on her. She became completely downtrodden by the event, feeling like a weak failure, and quit school. She returned home to her parent's ridicule, and quickly searched for a way out. She finally found it when she realized her calling in medicine after saving the life of a stranger at a restaurant by performing an emergency tracheotomy using only a steak knife and plastic straw. The technique was one she'd learned about online, and never actually studied in school. Raw beginner's luck contributed to her success, but she nevertheless took it as a sign that there was more out there for her than just cooking. She immediately signed up for the Union Navy as a Combat Medic, and was assigned as a first responder after completing basic training and combat medical technician school.
