History

Pre-RP

River was born to a rather normal family within the Occhestan household. Taught the tenants of Lorath society, taught how to use her abilities and how to serve her culture to advance it, River was a model child. Loving her parents deeply and always honoring their words of wisdom, she made sure to help her younger brother whenever the need arouse. Since the Yamataian contact though, she began to feel a rift grow between herself and her parents. Her brother, ever the dedicated one to her, followed along in her ideas. She never truly rejected nor hated the Yamataians. When the split came, the Occhestans leaving the Lorath, the rift that had been growing unseen until then suddenly tore open.

Having been receiving training to become a senator or ambassador, it was expected that she would follow her parents with the Occhestans. She wished to stay with the Matriarchy. This brought fight after fight, her brother siding with her while both her parents siding with the house. The Culmination of these fights finally broke in a open conflict between the parents and children. Using their bloodline abilities the parents, both Vendetta and Trust attacked their children mentally. Still younger and untrained as well as his parents and older sister, Meadow was left physically crippled. Before the killing blow could be dealt, River fought off both of her parents and made sure to secure both her, and her brother's mind. Since then, she hasn't heard whisper nor word of her parents.

With Aegis, the previous senator having stepped down and taken a early retirement from the political world, River has been called upon to become the Matriarchy's voice within the UOC goverment.
