Character Description

Hakahn Kashan for the most part is considered 'odd' and 'rebellious' toward the general pattern of the Fyunnen house abides by, despite his origins he is anything but a warrior. Eyeing the culture and practices of his house and the Lorath as a whole in distaste, quietly mocking the concept of a divided species. He prefers using guile and tactics, illusions and fabrications to fight his fights. Creating complex machinations and plots to meet his goals and desires. Effectively merely sitting in the background and pulling the strings and his underlings and enemies full filled his desires without the knowledge of the larger scheme at hand.

As a result his personality is borderline glacial, treating most of his personality as a means to an end and pawns in whatever mission hes been tasked with. Treating them as mere numbers, disposable toward the greater goal.

History

His childhood was marked with being on the male side of Lorath society, his male heritage marking him as the darker side of the Lorath psyche. Something he took to heart as he slowly grew into his capacity for turning his fellow Lorath against one another for personal gain. A skill which his military handlers exploited when his time for service began.

Hakahn quickly found his niche as a 'brain', a tactician for tactical operations and general espionage. Maneuvering all the pieces on the board to meet his handler's needs or expectations. His ability and tact resulted in a steep climb through the ranks of the LSDF... an ascent that was quickly brought to a halt after an altercation with one of his higher ups.

This 'incident' resulted in the effective end of his usefulness to those groups which had originally sought his talents leading him to eventually be handed the position as the ship commander for the LSDF Akahar, a grave for his career.

Appearance

- Hair: Light grey in color, he tends to keep it moderately long, with just enough length to tie it behind his head.
- Face: An odd angular face with a slightly off angle small nose (broken and improperly reset). The skin seems dark grey with some scarring and age around the mouth and eyes. There is also a large scar running down one side of his neck.
- Body: Customary to the Fyunnen house his body is lean and heavily muscled, although he is considerably less powerful compared to a female of his caste. One odd factor however.. maybe in act of defiance.. was the intentional removal of his wings.

Skill Areas

- Technology Operation: Hakahn has been self taught and trained on most form of Lorath technology, as a result he has some fundamental grasp of how most systems work and how they're not supposed to work. As a result he can competently operate most systems in the Lorath inventory.
- Mathematics: Having a decent grasp of mathematics up to basic trigonometry, he has found a certain love for probability and statistics. Often using them to gauge participants in his plans or operations. Determining their chances of success and adjusting his operational layout accordingly.

- Fighting: Like most Fyunnen Hakahn has an intimate relationship with the art of close combat, having become fairly familiar with the art of overcoming a stronger and larger opponent due to the nature of his house and childhood. However... he has found that he prefers to not tie himself to a primitive bladed weapon. Preferring a pair of semi-automatic pistols and a combat knife. He is also proficient in all basic Lorath requirements when it comes to operating other weapon systems or power armor.
- Humanities: Hakahn took great strides to understand those around him, no matter the caste, no matter the individual. To understand their ways, their quirks, their wants, what they are capable of. Numerous psychological courses followed all with the single minded to goal to be able to better control and manipulate those under his command.
- Rogue: While direct methods are favored he is fully capable of using underhanded tactics. In some cases the simple use of a few credits in the form of a backroom deal nullifying the problem to his plans.
- Leadership: A capable leader in an odd form, he tends to employ a dual sided tactic when inspiring and commanding. Both placing objectives in front of his troops and maneuvering them where they'll best be used due to their mentalities. Although he has shown he is not above trading his men for an objective, sacrificing a squad so that others may complete the mission.
- Communications: Hakahn speaks his native Lorath language fluently with a slight accent toward his house, he has also taught himself Nepleslian and Yamatain for the simple need to understand one's possible enemies.
