Physical Characteristics

- Mass: 95lbs (43.0913 kg)
- Measurements: B Cup

Build and Skin Color: Ji'xa has a degenerative disease that gives her a child like body instead of an adult's body. She has little muscle and a lot of child 'fat' so to speak, making her a little plump around the hips, the buttocks, the cheeks, thigh, and chest. She does have breasts albeit small ones and her skin color is that of almost porcelain white.

Eyes and Facial Features: Ji'xa's eyes are slightly narrowed, and has a strongly violet hue. Along with this the outer rim of her eyes are darkened black from extreme lack of sleep, due to nights spent up and awake inventing things and just generally studying, she has developed a knack for staying up late, but also only sleeping a few hours a day. Her face has a lightly oval like shape to it showing off more child like fat.

Ears: Ji'xa's ears are fluffy and pointy and adorable, she has greyish wolf like ears with a patch of white fur right at the tips. Ji'xa thinks they are adorable and loves them very much.

Hair Color and Style: Ji'xa has shoulder length white hair tied into a ponytail, the hair has light red highlighted streaks separated by two inches of white hair per streak.

Distinguishing Features: Ji'xa as stated has a disease that halted her physical development and made her permanently child like..

Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Ji'xa is an extremely intelligent Lorath despite her appearance. She has an extreme complex when it comes to her appearance and tends to get angry or depressed when teased about the fact she's so child like. She prefers for most people to treat her as an adult, and will sometimes forgive first time offenders if they didn't know she was an adult. Ji'xa has a strong fascination with electronics, computers, technology, and engineering in general. She also adores cute looking things like puppies, and kittens, and other baby like animals, and despite her child like looks she has a strong maternal instinct and can be very comforting at times.

- Likes: Being treated like the adult she is, Electronics, Engineering, cute things, babies.
- Dislikes: Comments on her Child Like appearance, people who threaten her friends, people who harm cute things, and people who dislike babies.
- Goals: To one day become a famous inventor that helps invent tons of cool stuff!

History

Family (or Creators)

- Ink'az Seurik "Youth" Lmanel (Father)

- Lor'ma Seurik "Beauty" Lmanel (Mother) [Deceased]
- Ul'tal Urinal "Strength" Fyunnan (Master/Motherly Figure)

Pre-RP

Ji'xa was born to Ink'az and Lor'ma Seurik on the Lorath home planet. Ji'xa from a young age was diagnosed with a debilitating disease that would stunt her growth into a full fledged adult. From the earliest time she could remember to the current time she grew a bit slower than her fellow Lorath. She eventually maxed out her growth at four foot five inches in height which was much smaller than any of the other Lorath she personally knew. From a young age she took extreme interest in the religious and spiritual ideologies that her people had, even more so than a normal Lmanel. She'd rely on her mother to teach her all the different things of the Lmanel tribe and she found it so pleasing that she desired to become a 'priestess' of sorts in their culture and arts.

Though that remained her goal for a long time, that changed when her mother passed away quickly from an unknown disease. Her father earlier had also been injured and could not work and provide for the family, because of that Ji'xa decided to change her career path and began studying things she could make a living off of. It was around this point that she found a passion in technology. She began to teach herself how to build, how to create, and how to program and other forms of technology that would help her later in her life. She changed her personal dream from the idea of being a priestess of sorts to the ideal of being a strong, independent, and intelligent inventor who could build things that would help others.

While she studied for this however, she began to notice that she had stopped growing and a mere 4'5", this was unfortunately a blow to her psychologically because most Lorath grew to be 5'11" or more. She would be constantly teased by the other Lorath kids that grew to become tall leading to her having a height complex and appearance complex. Despite the lack of growth however, she still was capable of successfully bonding with the animal she had as an aspect, a Wolf like creature. She was proud of her aspect, the Wolf like creature was a strong, athletic, and exceptionally intelligent animal that could survive in a pack or alone. She wore this fact with pride, though it didn't really help with the complex's she developed before hand.

Throughout her pre-teen and teenage years she developed more and more in her chosen art, Engineering. She would find herself building random things. There were times when she'd surprise herself and advance her knowledge even more. The biggest moment in her childhood that involved engineering was at the age of 14 when she developed and made from scratch a water purifier. It was the biggest moment in her life, and she took extreme amounts of pride in it. She tested the Water Purifier out and found out that it worked, and ever since then she's used it every day to get her nice clean water. As time passed her ambition grew larger and larger, as did her inventions, she made things such as small house-droids that would do minor things like clean up to a larger droid who would look after her injured father and do the cooking and cleaning. That large droid was the last major accomplishment she had before joining the LSDF.

After she got old enough, she decided she would take on a new challenge since she had read all the books she could about technology and engineering. She joined the LSDF and attempted to become a soldier. Here she learned to survive, and be strong, but despite her extreme dedication her size would come to haunt her and she would be incapable of passing basic training. It was around this time that she found a Lorath woman by the name of Ul'ta Urinal "Strength" Fyunnen, a woman who would be key to getting her the skills needed to become who she would become. Ul'ta noticed the ability that this girl possessed, and as such took her under her wing and helped develop her skills teaching her the basics of hand-to-hand combat, mostly focused on Pugilism, as well as convincing her to join the engineering career for the LSDF, she also taught her combat and other means of survival.

With this knowledge and the time spent with Ul'ta, Ji'xa overcame her appearance and size issues and was able to grant strengths that she never knew she had. Ul'ta took her in as if she was her own daughter, and helped her grow and learn even more, and once Ji'xa graduated she started down the path to making a name for herself, with the goal of becoming the engineer known across the universe! Despite the few years she's been away from home she does indeed still keep in contact with Ul'ta and her father through communicative emails, and voice chats. They are both very proud of her which pushes her to be better in everything she does.

Between the Lines (Part 1): YE34 - YE37

Upon survival of the horrid experience known as the LSDF Akahar, Jiji was promoted to Corporal and allowed some shore leave time. It was during this time that she was able to fix Doll-3, and make minor upgrades to him. Despite the trauma of the LSDF Akahar, she seemed to be doing rather well. Though, reality was that she had suppressed it, eventually it began creeping up into her subconscious and began giving her nightmares of beasts, snarling, sharp-toothed, beasts. It was around this time that she got introduced to her psychologist, provided by the Matriarchy, Im'ot Yrsk 'Wave' Lmanel.

Im'ot was a survivor of the moonfall on Lor in YE29, since they were both survivors of tragedy, this allowed Jiji to connect with Im'ot, and open up to him. The first few weeks of her psychological evaluation went exceptionally well allowing her to be approved for service soon after it was completed, while staying in contact with Im'ot whenever she got shore leave. Jiji was fine with this, so she got assigned once more, this time however it was to a ship named: LSDF Usk'um.

Upon this ship she was granted the position of engineer like with her previous job on the Akahar, though this time as a corporal she had a few underlings. She did her best to get close to them and teach them all she could, but thanks to her size they rarely took her seriously.

Skills

Communciations

Languages Able to Be Spoken and Written

- Nepleslian Trade
- Lorath
- Helashio
- Yamataian

Fighting

Ji'xa is small and as such does not have a lot of strength behind her. As such despite the fact she has knowledge in combat including how to use guns and hand-to-hand combat she is incapable of having strength behind it. There for while she knows how to fight her combat is lackluster at best. Unlike other Lmanel, due to being taught by a Fyunnan how to fight, she knows Pugilism.

Art and Vocations

Ji'xa learned at a young age how to create her own clothes and bags as well as other things. She has practiced this for a long time and has an extreme eye for detail, and is considered an extremely skilled artisan.

Maintenance and Repair

Ji'xa, as part of her expenditure of self-teaching engineering, also took up and learned Maintenance and Repair. She is capable of learning how to maintain and repair anything given the time to study it. She would be considered an 'Expert' in this field.

Technology Operation

Ji'xa also holds an extreme amount of knowledge in technology operation, something she had to learn to work her machines in question that she created. Her knowledge in computers and networking may not be the best but it is definitely up there amongst the best. She also knows how to hack into systems, though she'd never tell you upfront since its definitely a more shady technique.

Knowledge

Ji'xa holds an extreme amount of knowledge in the Lorath histories, religion, and law. She also has an extremely good memory that shows when she is required to remember something she's learned when building or designing her engineered things.

Engineering

This is Ji'xa's own pride and joy, she has spent a majority of her life learning about engineering and you'd be hard pressed to find someone who is capable of creating and designing something better than Ji'xa herself. She has knowledge in how to build pretty much anything so long as she can think of it, and design it whether on paper or in her head. She would be considered a 'Genius' in this field.

While she is self-taught, she had to take Formal LSDF engineering Training to become an LSDF Engineer.
