Pre-Rp

Celebration grew up in a fairly nice family. One sister, and a pair of loving parents, she had everything she would need in life, opportunity, the backing of her family, and even a few career paths that she could follow if nothing else caught her eye, but sadly it wouldn't come to be.

During her years in school along side her sister studying for aerospace sciences, Celebration met her lover, and her downfall, El'Zil "Starbright" Fyunnan. Falling in love over the course of the classes they spent together, they took the ultimate leap and eventually committed the ultimate taboo in Lorath society and slept together. Not found out immediately, they thought they were in the free and continued their secret love affair. But all good things must come to a end.

A jealous lover that Starbright spurned from her own house followed the Fyunnan girl and eventually found out the indiscretion, reporting it as is the duty of any good lawful Lorath. Arrested and put on trial, both Starbright and Celebration requested a trial by combat. Celebration won, putting down her opponent after a bloody battle to emerge victorious. Her lover was not so fortunate, falling in battle to none other then the soon to be high commander of the Fyunnan armies, Sen'Ythy "Fate" Fyunnan. As was the law, Starbright had her mind wiped, and lost all knowledge of anything but the most basic of functions.

Celebration's punishment while not as harsh, was still bad. She was exiled and sent away from her family and people, but given a ultimatum. When they took to the skies, the Matriarchy would give her a ship and crew of other law breakers, with the requirement that they had to pay a tribute to the Matriarchy yearly until such time that their debt to society was paid off.

As the stars and skies opened and gave way to new races and new possibilities, the Tur'Listans made good on their word of punishment, exiling Celebration and other trouble making Lorath to a new entertainment ship, the "Frana Ruica", With the responsibility that they make their payments on time.

Since then, Celebration has been in charge of the Frana Ruica, running the ship as she sees fit.

Skills

Physical

As any good Llamnel will attest, the body is a temple to be taken care of, to make sure the bonded know they are in good hands. Celebration is in good shape, able to take care of herself and exercises daily. She is also a bit of a acrobat, using her natural agility to put on shows from time to time.

Arts and Vocations

Ever the entertainer, Celebration knows well how to work with various medias like clay and some types of small stone and wood. She enjoys carving every once in a while, and often makes scale replicas of the various wildlife of her home planet.

Knowledge

Like a good Llamnel, Celebration went through all the schooling and teachings she needed to know the lore and rituals of her people, as well as the history they have. Though most of the time she shuns and mocks the old ways, she still holds true to some of them.

Biology

Taught from the time she was old enough to speak, Celebration knows well different levels of biology as do most all Llamnel. Never going much further past the secondary schooling of her people for biology, she never the less learned what she needed to in order to bond and come to a deep understanding of her bonded. She has bonded with a larger family of Berogs.

Entertainment

Ever the entertainer, Celebration is well versed in almost all things fun. From singing and dancing, she plays a few instruments to include drums, bass, keyboard, guitar, and even a trumpet. She is a vivid story teller and loves to show off even from time to time.

Leadership

Being the head of her ship, Celebration has a natural charisma about her that draws those in around her. Eagerly putting herself out as the center of attention in the room, she yearns for those around her to follow her, almost in a selfish and greedy way.

Starship operations

An expert of her ship, she has learned the ins and outs of the Zahl class she runs, knowing how to do everything in the ship from charting passageways through space, to actually piloting, and every other small nuance of her ship.
