Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Katia has been called many things. Cruel, Sadistic, uncaring, calculating and intelligent to name a few that are true. She is a product of her environment, and takes pleasure in her work. She however does not show this pleasure, instead keeping a usually neutral facade' which she uses to enhance the effect of what she does. She is a perfectionist in her job, and will do the upmost to ensure she "gets all the screams out" of anyone unlucky enough to be in her prison, and in her interrogation and torture rooms.

Katia is not shy about killing, and will do so outright if she sees a traitor, someone useless, and those poor unfortunate souls she interrogates that are of no longer any use. She has learned much from her cousin, the good Admiral Veles, and employs what she has learned to make her work all the more effective.

While she is what she is, she also has quite the keen, and cunning intellect. She will use someone if it benefits her work, and the Imperium. She can reward loyalty, and usually does as this also has the added effect of garnering respect in conjunction with the aura of fear she emits. To those who fail her, well...you usually never see them again. And if you do, then it is as a lesson to not fail, and screw up.
