

Chujo Kiseichuu

Admiral Kiseichuu is a Mishhuvurthyar parasite that acts as its' subspecies representative in matters concerning the conquest of Yamatai. The parasite is one of the oldest of its kind, having not taken the required action to convert its host into a fully-transformed zombie with a Mishhuvurthyar Tentacles. However, if Kiseichuu were to die, be it from battle or the completion of its biologically-dictated lifecycle, there is little doubt that the parasite community would put forward another of its own to take Kiseichuu's place. Other than its representative purpose, the parasite is intended to be used as a diplomat and negotiator, but only long enough for its enemies let down their guard, allowing a frontal assault by the rank-and-file Mishhuvurthyar forces.

Appearance

At about a meter in length, Kiseichuu looks like any other parasite type Mishhuvurthyar; it is a dark shade of brown with four red eyes, many legs, and has a spike protruding from its posterior. Its host, however, is a small Nekovalkyrja with long, straight black hair that wears a battle-worn Type 30B Yamataian uniform in command white. The parasite's moniker, Chujo Kiseichuu, comes from the fact that its host wears that particular rank pin—among several others of lower status—and has a chest full of hastily-placed award ribbons. Kiseichuu's host could almost pass as a healthy Neko if it weren't for its disheveled appearance and jerky and erratic movements.

OOC Notes

Chujo Kiseichuu is not up for adoption and may not be used by FMs or GMs if raz becomes inactive.
