Character Description

Leo Gerrick is a taller but stocky human man, with greying hair and a slight salt and pepper beard. He can generally be described as being like a grandfather to his employees; while not always directly involved with the things they are doing, he can be counted upon to express interest in the day to day tasks that are taking place wherever he visits, and almost always asks lower level employees if there are ways to make their jobs easier, more enjoyable, or more effective.

History and Relationship Notes

Gerrick was born on Planet Osman, a few decades before the OSO invaded the planet and took control. He took over a relatively large business on the planet from his father. When the people from space came down, he was quick to make the best of a bad situation, however, and began to come up with ways to apply the new technology that was flooding the planet. Using his business know how, he recruited offworlder engineers, and began to work on Osman Heavy Industries, a company that used the offworlders' technology to solve problems facing the planet.
