Physical Characteristics

Height: 6' 3" / 1.91 m Mass: 193 lbs. / 87.54 kg

Build and Skin Color: Broad, but muscular. Skin is a light tan color. Face and Eye Color: His face is light tan, much like the rest of his body. His eyes are a dark brown color. Hair color and Style: Black hair that is rather short and tends to lie flat all the time.

Distinguishing Features: Corro's most distinguishing feature is his cybernetic replacement for his right arm and his cybernetic power assisters on his legs.

- Cybernetic Arm: Corro lost his right arm in a gang shootout years back. Without high quality medical treatment it would have never worked properly again. With what little the Adlich's had they had Corro's right arm replaced with a 3rd generation cybernetic arm. The unit is rather bulky and awkward to look at. The largest portions being the forearm and the shoulder connector. The servos are open to the air and because of that requires careful maintenance. The beauty behind the arm is that it requires little electronics maintenance, being from the 3rd generation. The forearm provides a hardpoint for various service packs which include repair (mounts tools), computer (mounts a standard computer), and combat (mounts weapon systems). It also has increased strength compared with a normal arm. Corro has had several refits on the arm, vastly improving its maneuverability and combat potential.
- Cybernetic Power Assisters: Essentially cybernetics attached to, and inside, the user's legs. It works with the muscles to increase the amount of strength generated. It helps Corro achieve a better running speed, to keep up with more advanced species, as well as higher jumps. Like his cybernetic arm, Corro's power assisters require constant maintenance.

Personality

At first Corro seems like a simple Nepleslian, concerned only with himself and looking for the next bite of life. He does have tendencies to think about the now instead of looking at the future, as well as having a nasty temper. But inside Corro has deep seeded feelings for his family and friends. He holds a gruff, no-nonsense exterior, but given the moment he can become a crying wreck.

Likes: Good food, people being straight with the facts Dislikes: Art, lies, pacifists

History

A Nepleslian Ex-patriot is the easiest way to describe Corro. Corro Adlich was born on Nepleslia. His parents ran a small restaurant in one of the worse sections of the planet. Corro had always planned to work there once he had finished his basic schooling. However things ran afoul when two rival gangs began a shootout near the family store.

Corro and his younger sister, Helena, were just walking back from a supply pick up when a gang member mistook them for the rival gang and unload an entire clip into the then 16-year-old Corro and his 11-year-old sister. Corro's right arm and legs were struck several times, while his sister was hit in the stomach and far lower torso. The two siblings were left to bleed to death until emergency personnel were able to break up the shootout and reach them. By then, Helena had bled out and Corro was going into shock. They were able to revive Corro, but due to his injuries, unable to restore proper function to his legs and right arm. The Adlich family paid what they could to a friend to provide Corro with the cybernetic arm and power assisters.

But Corro's mind never recovered from the attack. He became disillusioned with Nepleslia and its government. He worked several jobs for the next 3 years in order to attain money for an off planet flight. He had heard of the Star Army of Yamatai, and about their programs. He saw it as an opportunity to put his skills with his cybernetics to use and possibly earn enough to send his family and friends away from Nepleslia.

During his time in the 5th Expeditionary fleet, Corro attained the leadership of an entire power armor wing as well as a scout ship. He also survived the tragedies of fleet mutiny and a surprise attack by a rogue AI. These events left him sobered as he took up his next task as Commander of the Namiko Carrier Wing. However during his assault on the planet Murf, he was defeated and captured by SMX forces. The extent of his torture and interrogation is unknown and his current whereabouts are unknown, but he is presumed KIA.
