Facial Features and Eye Color: She has a child-esque brilliance about her. Large, deep blue eyes, and a small nose and mouth.

Hair Color and Style: Dark jade green hair, that's kept down or occasionally in little ponytails on either side of head. It flows down to the base of her neck when kept down.

Distinguishing Features:

Psychological Characteristics

Personality: She is nearly perpetually happy, to put it simply. She is more than willing to help with anything, even the most strange or useless tasks if asked to, at least by a superior. Though she's still willing to help lower ranked individuals as well.

There are a few occasions when she'll actually be serious, mostly just when it is really needed. She also has a fiery temper, if someone can actually piss her off enough to her there.

She's a hard worker, though she'll sometimes have a streak of semi-laziness. But she'll still get it done on time, even after all of her procrastination.

Honoka is also a slight neat freak, on certain things. They have to be perfectly orderly, otherwise she'll just keep working on it. On other things, she can also be fairly messy in her presentation, though this only really includes her own personal stuff.

Likes: Helping others, Keeping things organized Dislikes: Disorganization Goals: To hopefully finally something that her family would be recognized for, also to just continue the family tradition.

History

Pre-RP

Originally a Geshrin, born back in YE 10. She grew up in a family where military service was a tradition, though no one in her family had anything notable. Though service was obviously dangerous, the fact that everyone in her family had come back relatively unscathed blinded her to that fact, so she was never that serious about it. The military pay also kept the household fairly well off, allowing Honoka to focus on schooling and the like.

Once she was old enough, Honoka would too join the military, to keep tradition. She went through basic training just like everyone else, and specialized in starship operations.

Unfortunately, not long after she joined, the Species Restriction Act came into affect. This put a damper on her military service. She had to make a choice, leave the military and break the family's tradition and honor, or switch bodies. She opted for the latter.

Then, there was the choice of a Yamataian body or a Nekovalkyrja body. Though a tough choice, she chose the neko body, much to the dismay of her family. The main reasoning behind the choice was that the NH-29's SPINE interface would help her in operations work. She took an extended leave due the shock of switching bodies, to get used to the vastly more complex 'control' over herself.

From there, Honoka quietly rose through the ranks.

Eventually, despite the lack of anything special in her profile, Honoka was put up as a possible candidate to be an aide to the recently reborn Taisho of the Fourth Standard Fleet, Shimizu Akina.

She can also write clearly with filling out forms, reports, etc. This can all be done in combat and non-combat situations.

Vehicles

She's practiced and is good at driving a car from her experience before the military. It was for babysitting-esque stuff, to keep her little brother, Haruto, entertained by driving him places when her parents were busy. She's good enough to the point where she hasn't crashed... yet.
