Basic Background

Ichigo was created as a matching twin sister to Miharu Nimura, though she emerged first from the hemosynthetic tank, which makes her the second sprite created on the Miharu. Ichigo spends most of her time assisting in Miharu's and also helps out with security in the ship when the infantry crew needs a hand. She is, to date, the only person able to have a real conversation with her twin sister.

Miscellaneous Info

Personality Quirks

Ichigo, while young, has had a need to mature fast - both from needing to prove appropriately supportive to the typically overworked chief engineer of her ship, and also to wrap her mind around the early discovery of her free-will and feminity. Finding herself implicated too-much too-fast in a possibly more intimate relationship, Ichigo has sort of shied away a bit from social interactions and decided to spend most of her time devoted to her duties until she could come to term with it. She tends to prefer spending most of her time with her twin Nimura... mostly because the other offers uncomplicated, silent companionship.

Still, Ichigo remains more personable than Nimura and tends to speak for her twin, whom rarely ever utters a spoken word and doesn't say all that much through telepathy either. Even Ichigo is often mystified by Nimura's behavior, though she remains typically tolerant and supportive - she's grown to believe that despite Nimura being withdrawn and not sociable that she is actually much more talented than she lets on.
