Pre-RP

By the age of 10, little Sayoko knew she wanted to write for a living, using her spare time to write here and there to build her skills. She, however, knew by the age of 18 that she should be well prepared to get a real job should that not work out, and decided that, for college, she would pursue her other love: Biology. Specifically the biology of other races in the galaxy, and the genetics behind them. She is currently in her third year of college, having taken a year off to relax before going back to the grind, knowing she would need the time to relax before hand. To do so, she is currently on a pleasure cruiser, doing her best to just kick back and write or swim. Sayoko also participated in music classes to round herself out a little, and has found that her favorite instruments are string based, thus focusing primarily on the violin, which she sees as one of the more versatile string instruments, and most emotional.

Skills

Art

Sayoko is a fairly skilled writer, be it writing fiction or scientific reports. Most of her free time is usually devoted to either homework for her degree, or working on what will hopefully be her first novel. She will also frequently jot down things that catch her interest, possibly for research, possibly for being inspiration for part of a story.

Biology

Currently an Undergrad, she has yet to decide where she will be specializing. Thus, Sayoko is a generalist, with an interest in specializing in both Xenobiology and genetics when the time comes for her to select such things.

Communications

As a skilled writer, she is also good at writing reports and remembering minor details for such things. She also carries about a notepad that she jots ideas and details down on, just in case.

Knowledge

Having a mind for details, Sayoko easily remembers even some of the smallest things, allowing her to write them down later as either part of a report or as inspiration for a story.

Survival

Sometimes a girl, or a writer, just has to be out of the city. Once a year, she goes camping with nothing but what she can carry on her back for a pair of weeks. She knows the basics of survival, and it's gotten her this far.

Entertainment/Music

Unknown to many but her closest friends, Sayoko enjoys playing stringed instruments in general, and is fairly good at picking up how to play most of the kind. Her favorite is the violin.

Technology Operation

Being a writer and scientist, Sayoko knows how to use computers very well, and can trouble shoot minor problems with personal terminals and networking routers and printers.
