Physical Description

Shunjou is a short Minkan, at the species' lowest standard height of 4'9". He has a light-skinned Asian phenotype, with the almond-shaped eyes that brings, colored a dark green. His straight hair is black and kept short, framing his rounded face with only a slight angle at the chin. Poking out of that hair are two pointed cat's ears covered in likewise black fur.

His body is very lithe, being little more than skin and bones, though with a subtle toned muscle at the arms, legs, and belly. A long, short-haired tail extends from his lower back, almost always swaying slowly about.

Personality

Shunjou is the definition of confident and outgoing. He is incredibly friendly to everyone, sometimes overly so, and never seems to realize if someone wants to be left alone. This can of course cause conflict among those who don't appreciate his company. If rejected in no uncertain terms, he will typically obsess over not being liked by someone and fall into a panic, but his easily distracted nature makes these instances short-lived.

He is always in motion, finding ways to burn off his excessive energy. Working out, flight practice, sport, gaming, or anything else that seems fun are good by him. When forced to be still for any extended period of time, he gets fidgety and visibly and vocally anxious.

For better or worse, his positive attitude extends to the battlefield. He thoroughly enjoys the rush of fighter piloting, and might even be said to have a sinister bloodlust. This has yet to noticeably effect his ability to follow orders or operate in the field, but he is prone to want to engage enemies over any other possible objective.

History

Shunjou was born in Kyoto to a polyamorous triad: Kurohane Jun, his husband, Hiro, and their mutual lover, Tanaka Naoto. Due to Naoto's military job often taking her away from home, Shunjou was primarily raised by his fathers, though his mother always visited on leave and loved him just as dearly. He was raised quite comfortably, given their three paychecks and respectively well-paying jobs, and grew up doing just about anything he wanted to. Under Jun's guidance, he took to theater from a young age, and even seemed set for a career in the field. He showed less interest in his other father's mathematical work, but he was an above average student. A jovial lad, he was never lacking for friends or, into his teenage years, lovers, and he built up quite a social life into his adulthood.

In his 20th year, however, he made the surprising choice to leave his home and friends behind on Yamatai, enlisting in the Star Army to follow in his mother's footsteps. Though taken aback by this seemingly-uncharacteristic decision, his parents supported him through it all. He committed himself fully to his training, and soon graduated as a qualified fighter pilot assigned to the YSS Kaiyo II.

Skills Learned

Communication: Shunjou has all the expected communications training of any Star Army recruit. In addition, he is practiced at calligraphy and elocution, and can write particularly eloquently. He speaks Trade and Yamataigo.

Fighting: He is trained and qualified to defend himself, but he does not particularly excel at it over any other soldier.

Technology Operation: As per Star Army Common Skills

Mathematics: Shunjou never distinguished himself at math, but he did learn quite a bit from his astrophysicist father. He is familiar with all basic and many advanced mathematic concepts, and can work out even complex equations given enough time and effort.

Starship Operations: Shunjou dedicated himself to piloting during his training, and it was the subject he showed the most interest and competence in. He's spent plenty of time in simulators and training flights, performing harrowing maneuvers with exuberant glee and skill, and is eager to test himself in a real battle.

Entertainment: Shunjou was immersed in a theater background from birth, and often accompanied his fathers to plays and social occasions. Over the years, he learned much about acting, singing, and etiquette, and even studied theater extensively in school. In addition, he has had much luck in love, and is quite handy at keeping a lover entertained.

Maintenance and Repair: Shunjou has made a point to learn how his fighter works, and how to keep it running in top shape. This training eventually extended to other mechanical objects during his time learning under maintenance crews, and he can be relied upon to repair moderate damage to most forms of equipment.
