Physical Description

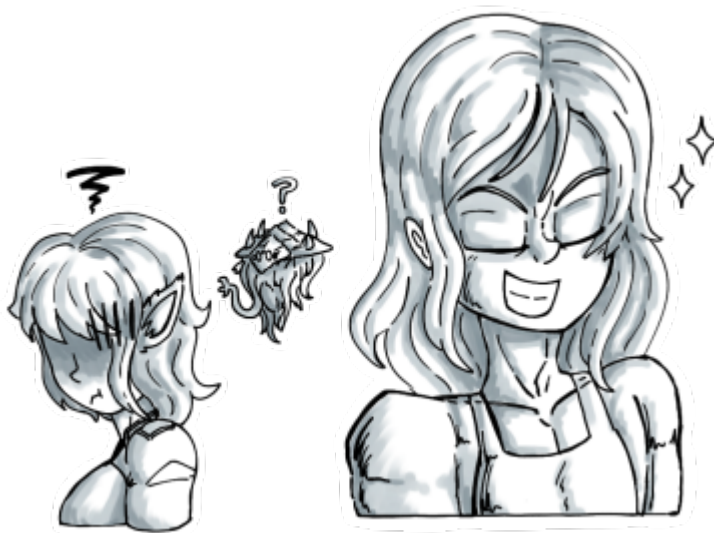

Mikodimus is 6'2" tall with a lean muscular frame. On a good day he weighs roughly 190lbs. His hair is long and silver. Think pretty boy and you are going the right direction. His eyes are a deep blue. While he can sport a full beard 99% of the time he is clean shaven. Despite his age his voice is deep with a strong command behind it. His chest is strong and bulky but also lean and fit. His 8 pack is something you could iron a shirt on. His arms and legs are long and bulked. His butt is sculpted like mount rushmore.

When not in standard issue uniform, he sports a very fashion forward look in the kitchen. He sports a salmon colored apron with a cute smiling bear on the front of it. Over the top of it reads "Kiss Me" and under "House of Belmont". Under the apron tends to be a Star Army Exercise Uniform, Type 40.

Personality

Mikodimus is a person with a commanding presence when he enters a room. He is by the book type of person and expects this of all who are around him. When out of the uniform and in the kitchen, he acts more like a father figure. His main desire is to learn more of the outside world. Having been sheltered most of his life he yearns to explore all that the universe has to offer. His moves are calculated and precise in execution. When everyone is going to bed, he can be seen still cleaning up the kitchen. When in doubt, Miko is a person you can count on to help when in a bind. He is level headed and calm under most situations. It has also been said that in the after hours he enjoys time with the opposite sex.

One of his glaring flaws that he has is his issue with authority. It is not so much he does not follow orders as it is he believes the brass at the top do better sharpening a pencil than leading an army. He is a proud man with a desire to be a leader of top quality.

History

Mikodimus Belmont was born in YE 17 in what is now Kyoto, Yamatai. One could say he lived a normal life but when you live on the home world this is hard not to do. None the less this did not stop Miko from finding ways to be his own person growing up. Even in his early years he was very formal and proper. Was never late, bed made first thing in the morning and ready to take charge at the first chance given. As he matured he found ways to befriend all those around him. Always willing to give advise or just lend an ear to someone.

In the years leading up to Miko joining the service he was taken into the family business. Large sections of records are missing from this time frame. He would spend many months away from home and when he would come back would not speak a word of what happen. The only indication of his activity was the few notes in a journal he kept. On the front cover read, "In memory of those with honor".

The big surprise to many was his desire to enlist into service. He never had any dream of going this direction in life but figured this would be the best way to get out to see the world. Same say he choose this path as a way to get away from the secret life he led. On his application was the desire to serve and protect.

Basic training for Miko was a breeze. Having already drilled into himself at a young age the desire to be perfect made it simple to follow commands. His strong desire to do well and to look out for others made it fairly simple to make friends. One item that would have been noted on his record is how we would react to orders. While he would execute them to a high level of accuracy, there would always be small adjustments. Another item his commanding officer's noted is how ruthless he was to the enemy. He had no qualms killing them and to some this just seemed like a another normal day to Miko. That said his loyalty was without question, he protected his friends during conflicts putting his own life in harms way. It had been overheard several times him saying to his peers, "I shall crush all who get in the way of our objective." What was meant by this was never understood but some believe it has to do with an internal desire he has.

One might be asking why of all professions would a person with this level of command and drive be a chef. Well the short answer is that he has always enjoyed food growing up. So going into cooking school just made sense. Though the running joke was that secretly Miko was a blood thirsty butcher who used a chef as a front. He'd only chuckle and laugh at how silly this was even if true years before. During his years at school he was always challenging everyone to a dual. This is where he also learned his favorite line to say to people. By the time he graduated his crowning achievement was his knife skills. Some of the instructors even noted that his motions seemed unreal and as if his hands were trained in another profession before hand.
