Psychological Characteristics

Personality: Quiet, reserved and confident are three words that can describe Natsume, she comes off to people she's around as almost too quiet. It's not that she's personable, quite the opposite in fact. Just when she's around other people Natsu tends to keep to herself and listen more than speak, sometimes this helps gather information because nobody thinks much of the girl sitting by herself sipping tea quietly. She's led a disciplined, strictly ordered life having grown up with her martial arts heavy family. So she thinks in a regimented fashion and is sometimes blunt and concise about her words.

Likes: Mint Tea, Rice Cakes, Natto, Sweet Bean Paste, Porkstickers, Learning new things, Making new discoveries and Seeing her work used. Dislikes: Failure, Mishhu and Loud Music Goals: To break the secrets of the Mishhu open and witness their final destruction.

History

Pre-RP

Natsume was a geshrin originally, born on Yamatai to loving parents and eventually would have a younger brother as well. All her life she aspired to be a doctor or scientist, having not liked the idea of killing other people. When she joined the military at 16, she would end up in a position of a nurse aboard a ship and would stay there for a long time until the species restriction act. Faced with possible expulsion because of her race; Natsume had her body upgraded to that of a Yamataian. Time went on as it always did and she'd serve well and admirably for her position, and was quick and efficient in her actions; saving many lives. She'd work her way through the ranks and even attracted the attentions of officers that were interested in her. But an unfortunate situation where her ship had been defeated and captured by the SMX changed her outlook on life and personality forever. Natsume had since taken a lover and was planning on marrying him, but when the ship was taken. He was killed protecting her and Natsume was taken and raped several times and used for a breeder. The act killed her unborn child, the incident made her angry but she couldn't fight back because of the amount of sedatives she'd been injected with. But within a few months a friendly ship rescued her when their armored soldiers raided the ship. In disgust of her body and the unbearable memories it carried for her, she'd change bodies again to a new one. When she escaped, she'd managed to procure a few small items of mishhu technology and brought them with her. After months of study, she'd present her superiors with useful knowledge- and eventually she'd be asked to administer the research lab to study both the Mishhu and their tech: she accepted in the spirit of revenge.
