Physical Description

Natsukashii is unable to control their visual camouflage and no longer stays in one form for long, but rarely glitches to the extent that they no longer look human. Most of the facial features they have are somewhat effeminate, though, but not overly so to the degree where they could be considered womanly. Their visual appearance changes constantly, every few seconds at times or instantaneously at others. They may have the pectorals of a man on moment and a moderate bust another. Despite that, they have the natural body type if you feel it without using your eyes but your hands and fingertips or other body parts, you will see they have a flat chest besides for obvious pectoral muscles and are thickly muscled in the abs and upper arms especially. They have runner's lower legs and ballerina's upper legs and forearms. Their genitalia is non-existent, another malfunction. They will always have human ears, though, despite the color and they are lobed with rounded edges.
