Rukasu's childhood was a loving one. Born YE 16 on Planet Yamatai, in the town of Kyoussou. His mother; Ayame staying home to raise him. While his father; Roku worked for the Kyoussou Police Force \(KPF\). Throughout his childhood Rukasu was taught about honor, loyalty, and respect; both for his family and ancestors and the empire, his father wanting to install these ideals, as a way of life in his young son; and it stuck with the young Rukasu. The first six years of his life he was an only child, but Ru didn't mind to much; he was never alone with his mother, always there while of course his father worked but when he was off they spent time together as well. Though the next year saw the birth of his little sister; A surprise for young Rukasu, excited at the notion of having a younger sibling to care for, and play with Rukasu's childhood seemed amazing. Though there always was the question by the young boy about his grandparents. The only reply he received, was that they were no longer here. He would come to find out that, due to Great Plague of YE 08 His grandparents, and most of his extended family had died. Though his father and mother survived; a question He asked how, but the only answer he ever got was 'luck'.

YE 23, A year after his sister was born, Rukasu's second year in lower secondary, met with the knowledge of war. His father; always having been loyal to the empire, and with a great desire to protect both his wife, and children left to enlist in the growing Star Army. The end of the war came swift only lasting two years, but his father never made it home. Rukasu was still in elementary, while his mother had a new born child to care for. Though sad times had fallen on his family, his mother continued to remain a strong pillar for all the things Ru's father had taught him, and with the help of his aunt; they were able to pull through the sad times a bit easier.

The rest of his childhood, though absent of a father continued to be a good one, with his sister always nearby, or following him Rukasu developed, a strong desire to be a protector; the desire only growing and fueling his passion to enlist as he grew older, a desire only seconded by his drive to understand how the technology that surrounded him worked. Through lower secondary, he tried to convince his mother that when he was old enough to enlist, but she would not have it. She instead talked him into enrolling in a technology course; the Kyouso Institute of Technology, a place where his gift with learning quickly, and understanding tech would be put to better use. The loss of his father, and the desire not to harm his mother's feelings in anyway saw him obey.

The five years he spent at Kyouso tech. brought him great joy, with hands on learning, as well as taking up the fencing team, Rukasu's mother seemed all but happy that her son seemed to be content with his life, but little did she know even though Ru was happy with his schooling, his desire to enlist did not diminish. The day of his graduation he announced, more so to his mother that he was in fact enlisting. Though in truth; it broke her heart, she was happy that her son was still following his heart, though she happened to convince him to wait a day or two, to spend time with the family and he did gladly, watching his young sister enjoy her own scholastic journey with friends. He left his home with fire of determination, and the resolve to honor his father's memory.
