Vedica is a mixture of Lianjia Abd Bahadi and an Nepleslian Red genetic line. She is given a template specifically designed by the Nepleslian Reds of Fujiko. As such instead of the dark brown eyes she normally would have, she instead has dark orange-red eyes.

Cybernetics

As one of the first test batches of a new kind of artificial Nepleslian (not naturally born), Vedica has a number of cybernetics at release. She was granted four additional enhancements (as were the rest of her batch) due to their status as firsts.

- Zhenren I1G Genetic Supplement
- Zhenren I3N Myelin Enhancement
- Zhenren I3B Digestive Enhancement Microfauna
- Zhenren I1N Digital Mind
- Zhenren I2N Cortical Modem
- Advancer Iron Bone Enhancement
- Nanite enhanced lungs that help filter toxins and facilitate better gas exchange (longer endurance)
- electro-active polymer-enhanced heart with cardiovascular system enforced with Durandium Mesh
- Shin Mental Backup Implant

Personality

The best description for Vedica is that is a “deeply” focused individual. She has been known to get violent with others if she deems a task to be for the betterment of everyone around her and a person is interfering with her efficiency. As she is a fanatic professional, she does not like those (again to the point of getting violent) that cut corners to complete tasks. Especially dangerous ones that can hurt the greater good.

When she is not focused on her work she often spends time maintaining her equipment, honing her combat skills, or reading a philosophical thesis. She limits her friendships with other like minded individuals and those that hold honor and professionalism high.

Though despite this one trait, she has a strong sense of individualism as she sees herself separate from the others. She can work in a collectivist environment, but she will look for the nearest opportunity to return to her normal self at the first chance.

- Likes: Building equipment and firearms, mentoring young people, AIs
- Dislikes: Tricksters, lazy and unfocused people, xenophobic individuals

History

Vedica Radcliff was born in YE 44 on the RKS Akiharu located in the Fujiko at the time. One of the first of a new generation of Clones created in a collaboration between the Nepleslian Reds and the Ryu Keiretsu. Her “life” of 21 years was experienced within 35 days on the ship.

"Childhood"

While grown in 35 days, Vedica (along with all other clones of her batch) experienced a true childhood from their perspective thanks to a combination of drugs, cybernetics, and time-compressed virtual reality. From Vedica's perspective, she was born on Fujiko within the city of Red Sands. Her mother was an private security consultant and her father was a former Red Star Army soldier.

Her parents raised her to be interested in science, engineering, and the combat arts. When she was old enough, they signed her up to a special Kikyō Scouts program to further enhance her interest in the military side of life. Her teachers also heavily encouraged her and the rest of her "classmates" to do the same as their studies became more and more geared towards STEM.

One notable event Vedica remembers is when on a trip, her bus had an accident. The adults "died", leaving the children needing to fend for themselves as they were in the wilderness of Fujiko. Vedica and another senior student were instrumental in them surviving and getting into contact with the authorities a week later. The experience was a driving factor in her desire to help those less fortunate than herself.

She attended a military university where she got dual degrees in Nanoengineering and Mechanical Engineering.

Pre-RP

Shortly after her birth, the Old Guard leadership caught wind of the project that had given her birth. As she was given elite military training in addition to her academic skills, they immediately "convinced" to leave the Nepleslian Research and Manufacturing security force and assigned to one of the key Red "militias" (Pirate Bands) located on the Black Moon of Halna. While she was compensated well for her knowledge set compared to the other "one trick ponies" around her, her fellow militia members were not above taking advantage of lack of experience in the real world to try to get ahead of others.

She knew everything they were was against what she was taught during her deep learning. But she also had a very deep level of professionalism and honor that kept her from vocally expressing her displeasure too much. She just grinned and bared it as she was tasked with improving the massively beaten state of areas on the Black Moon where her "commanders" were living. She was strongly discouraged (physically abused) to ignore the civilian population as "They had chosen to be here and failed at life".

But an opportunity eventually presented itself that allowed Vedica to escape her predicament. During 44.1, fighting broke out in the areas of the Black Moon controlled by the Reds between those were believed in perusing a new path for the Reds and those that wanted to focus on the old ways of "Live and Let Live". The latter ultimately prevailed on the Black Moon due to the vast number of criminals and outlaws the location attracted.

But due to being Reds, they offered the survivors of the losing side to gather their dead and peacefully leave as their point had been made. While she was not fighting for the losing side, she knew things were only going to get worse for her if she remained. So she transferred all of her earnings to another bank account that had been set up for her prior, snuck onto the retreating transport, and escaped Halna with the Reformist survivors. When she was discovered, they were none to pleased. Her known actions in trying to protect civilians during the fighting was what saved her from being spaced.

When she arrived back to Fujiko and contacted her old colleagues, she was offered a position within the Federal Self Defense Force as her skills were in demand. But being among the less desirable for a short while had ignited something within her that all Reds felt. For all the flaws those of the Black Moon had, she could see the appeal of being able to live your life the way that you want. So when she met a recruiter for the one of the many harebrained merc outfits Nepleslia likes to bankroll in 44.4, she immediately signed up for the chance to manifest her destiny and help those in a trying situation.

In what she thought would be a normal first exploration mission, Vedica was one of the few survivors of hundreds of equally inexperienced and dimwitted recruits. Her previous training provided by the Reds were the only thing that managed to save her. That and the vastly superior equipment she personally bought just in case. Taking her earnings and issued equipment as a personal severance package when the organization folded, she smuggled herself back to Fujiko.
