While Galactic Horizon employs a standing security force for its headquarters and other major locations within Nepleslia and Yamatai it couldn't be considered a real military force. With a looming threat to the companies old stomping ground they called upon every able-bodied member they could spare and even trained several of the technicians and maintainers in combat techniques to join the fight.

History

The Osman Expeditionary Force was conceived in late YE 45 and took several months to organise and deploy with most of their equipment being ferried in via the Abyssal Nomad and several bulk freighter craft they loaned from various shipping agencies and Neshaten traders. Eventually Galactic Horizon had its relatively small but efficient logistics-based force assembled at a staging grounds within Osman's local system ready to deploy alongside their comrades both familiar and fresh.

With a strong focus on teamwork and communication but the undeniable need for firepower coordination it was decided that Kryss Black and Brin Bluestone would lead Horizon's forces and joint Generals, one with experience in combat tactics the other a silver tongue laced with mercury when required. As usual they were assisted by the twin-operation AI's Dusk and Dawn that oversaw many functions within the company on a Galactic Scale.
