Discharge Information

Projection/ammo type:4.95x34mm Styrling Caseless.

Firing Mechanism

In a closed-bolt system, a round must first be chambered manually before the weapon can fire. When the trigger is pulled, only the hammer and firing pin move, striking the cartridge's primer and firing the bullet. The bolt then recoils far enough rearward to load a new cartridge from the magazine into the firearm's chamber, ready to fire again once the trigger is pulled.
