

Yeger Armaments 10 Gauge Khishchnik Shotgun Shell

In early YE 43 Yeger Armaments began producing their own 10 gauge “khishchnik”¹⁾ shotgun shells filled with steel 000 buckshot designed to obliterate soft targets. Rather traditional in their design the shells themselves make use of a rimmed Durandium Alloy base and a brown polymer hull, featuring the Yeger Armaments logo printed onto the side.

In addition to the standard buckshot shell Yeger Armaments offers a “fragmentation” variant, differentiated via text on the box and hulls that reads “Fragmenting Shotgun Shell” opposed to the standard “Shotshell” labelling. These shells are identical save for the fact that the steel pellets have premade breaking points machined into their surface which cause them to break apart inside a target, designed more for offence/defence than hunting as they leave much messier wounds that are laced with razor-sharp metallic shards, which are much more nuanced to remove than intact steel pellets.
