

Forest Park

A type of nature park found on Abwehran stations, a Forest Park is a wilderness area developed for the purpose of creation as well as providing a natural habitat to non-predatory, endangered species. A Forest Park normally takes up about 6 square kilometers of area comprised entirely of forested areas with some creeks to provide water. Sprinkler systems built into the ceiling simulate periodic rainfall in the biome and solar lighting is timed to simulate the night and day cycles of the world of the forest.
