

Hapu-daho'te (Hand Fighting)

Hapu-daho'te is a form of fighting style practiced by the Qakto, and Qakla of the Poku Saeruo Degonjo. Its origin can be traced back to ancient history on the Otâgolisoy \(Birth world\).

This style is mandatory for members of the Tavi Fua Jael \(Blood Tooth Sect\) Sect. While it is predominantly an unarmed form of combat, it does offer a number of weapon specializations. It is based on throws, holds, strikes and blocks with the intent to disable or incapacitate the opponent. The form is as defensive as it is offensive.

Advanced users target limbs with non-life threatening injuries.
