

LSDF Major Computer Access

Located near key operating compartments of ships and installations, major computer access rooms allow for the rapid retrieval, input, and manipulation of data put through Lorath computing systems and networks. Terminals in these rooms allow for the management of large quantities of data, and include intuitive user interfaces which allow for a user to rapidly work with the computing system and network which the terminal is connected to. These access terminals often have one to four workstations. Each workstation includes software and hardware security measures which prevent unauthorized data access, or even workstation system access.
