

LSDF 'Red Light' Sections

Integrated into starships and installations with sizable crews, 'red light' sections are compartments and passages which are devoted to the purpose of partaking in the trade of 'intimate services'. These sections can be as simple as lounges where patrons can 'shop' for the provider of 'services', to elaborately designed compartments which amount to brothels. Red light sections can also include a variety of additional services such as shops, recreational quarters, electronic entertainment venues, and other locations which have been designed to be devoted to the purpose of carnal gratification. It should be noted, that such compartments may also include long-term service personnel purchasing services.
