Notable History

The clan was formed when Nepleslian Expat Kazu Kurosaki rescued Yamataian Expat Chie from slavers and he took her away from danger. The couple settled on Planet Osman and did some work, and through that, they learned about business. Later on, Vilkas came into the world, and Chie left her work to take care of them, while Kazu became the sole money maker in the family. Kazu also taught his son how to fight, and Vilkas seemed to take to learning how to fight really well growing up, much more to that than business. This worried his parents, that their son would be a violent person, perhaps even a warlord or something. But with the birth of the twins, the boy found a reason to fight, to protect his sister. He proved his protection and courage, when Aeta wandered near a drop bear den when she was 2 months old. Dodging and weaving he grabbed his sister and got her out of there, and once she was saved, he slaughtered the drop bear with a spear and fire. Vilkas continued training with the spear, and graduated to firearms, which his parents got him. His father aided his training making sure he had all the knowledge needed. But then trouble came and they had to leave. The Kurosaki Patriarch and Matriarch sacrificed themselves so that their children could get on an Exodus ship off-world. But the children were separated as Vilkas was forced to be on a different ship.

The Twins POV

The twins spent time communicating with their brother or continuing their education. Astrid took to business education well. While Aeta favored manual labor and overseeing labor groups. But then they lost contact with their brother as the ship didn't make it to where they were going. The trip's length allowed them their time to grieve before they made it to Sanctum. With Astrid's business skills, and Aeta's labor and labor group skills, the twins decided to form a corporation and one to fill a niche that the New Dusk Conclave needed, a Mining Guild. They got the backing from Nyx Pine, a member of the royal family, and with that started looking for places to mine on the planet.

Eventually, as the NDC expanded so too did the Mining Guild, in not only locations but personnel too. They began business dealings with the other corps both within the NDC and outside of it, and it was around late YE 43 that they were reunited with their brother who had formed a corp of his own, which accepted theirs as a client, so that he could say to protect his sisters again.

Desiring to focus on the business and not go out for diplomacy, Astrid hired Alice Sursilvan, to their diplomatic department to perform diplomatic things. And eventually, their friends in the Motoyoshi Clan invited them to join them on a trip outside the sector. The prospect was intriguing, but having been a part of an exodus before, the Kurosaki clan elected to remain behind, but they have created a branch, a Mining Guild Contingent to go with them.

Vilkas POV

Much like his sisters, he spent time communicating with his sisters, or training, as well as learning from experienced older mercs and combat veterans when the ship lost power to its Hyperdrive. This resulted in the ship dropping out of warp in a dangerous pirate territory. The Pirates invaded and killed some civilians before Vilkas rallied the defenders and fought the pirates and dominated them. As a result of Vilkas's courage, some have taken to following him, and learning through him. As a result, he began forming his own corp a private security force. He worked very hard, to make the team into a proper force, and eventually through connections his sisters made he discovered their whereabouts and returned to them. He eventually allowed his security force to work as part of the Mining Guild's security team to protect Mining Guild assets. When the Motoyoshi clan had invited the mining Guild to join them on a trip out of the Kikyo sector, he chose his fourth division captain to go to the mining guild contingent, and allowed Captain Sheath to pick his army to go with him.
