Mission Statement

The Nis'henon Media Group is a group of trade families who are banded together to provide ample entertainment to the Kingdom. They range from the creation of children's shows, education shows, live-action videos and movies, to running their own theme-park. They are one of the Kingdom's main program providers.

History

In the year of ER 655, there four trade families that had been dealing with entertainment for the Kingdom. One of them handled mainly children's cartoons, another was mostly involved in movies and cinema production, while the last two dabbled in both fields. Toward the end of that year though the four families decided to band together, but for economical reasons and also because all four each had something the others didn't, and pulling all of their talents together was considered a smarter thing to do than potentially run each other out of business.

This is what lead to the creation of the Nis'henon Media Group, headquartering themselves on Nesha Prime, they originally inhabited a small warehouse with an employee count of barely two hundred. But as the years went by, this count slowly rose from the hundreds to the thousands and then, in ER 750, to the tens of thousands. They built their own headquarters in the capital, and later bought some land in the Entertainment City of Sereia, where they transformed it from being what it used to be - a small place for family to come and have fun, to being the entertainment capital of the Kingdom (currently).
